March 21, 2007

Dear GoodTree LLC:

A milestone year for Save the Children - its 75th anniversary serving children in need in the U.S. and around the world - is even more special, thanks to your gift of $335.49. Please accept my gratitude for joining so many others who share our commitment to the survival and well-being of vulnerable girls and boys. With your help, 2007 promises to be one of greater progress and hope for them, and also for bringing our relief and development programs to an even greater scale.

Save the Children's roots are in rural Appalachia. Today, we remain a vital resource there and in many other rural communities, helping children improve their reading, their health and their nutrition. I'm especially proud that in 2007 we are rolling out a new early childhood development initiative to help low-income families prepare their younger children to succeed in school. We also remain by the side of children in Gulf Coast communities recovering from Hurricane Katrina and are building our capacity to respond when the next major U.S. disaster puts children in jeopardy.

Our anniversary year also finds Save the Children working nonstop in every hemisphere to help millions of girls and boys recover from conflicts and disasters and make measurable progress through our programs in health, education, nutrition, HIV/AIDS prevention and mitigation and microfinance for their mothers. Long a leader in developing innovative solutions to children's needs, we are committed in 2007 to involving more partners than ever so that we can increase our impact in children's lives and futures.

For 75 years, Save the Children has depended on its donors' generosity and compassion to help us help children overcome adversity. With your pooled support for the breadth and depth of our global mission, I know that this legacy of caring will continue. It's a great privilege to thank you.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Miles
Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer
