

Kristin Tice Studeman - Style.com

The director talks Twitter and texting at his Irrational Man screening.

Woody Allen: “I Don’t Even Know What Tweeting Is”

Parker Posey and Woody Allen

Photo: Getty Images

While New York men’s fashion week parties dominated Wednesday night’s social calendar, plenty of designers, socials, and models took a break to catch the Cinema Society’s screening of Woody Allen’s latest flick, Irrational Man, which stars, among others, Emma Stone and Joaquin Phoenix.

“Emma has it all—she’s funny, she’s beautiful, she’s smart, and how can you not like coming to work every morning when she’s there?” said Allen. He also took a moment to explain the buzz floating around that Stone taught him how to tweet. (See her latest appearance on Conan O’Brien.) “No, she didn’t teach me how to tweet; I don’t know how to do that, but she taught me how to text,” the 79-year-old told Style.com. “I even texted her a few times to prove that I could do it, although it’s frustrating because my fingers always hit the wrong button and I am not a social texter. I don’t even know what tweeting is.”

Parker Posey, who was standing near Allen on the red carpet, stars as Rita in the film. Of her freshly blond hair, the natural brunette said, “Blonds work harder.” With it, she was sporting a turban and a matching gold Electric Feathers gown. “It’s not all glitz and glamour...at the end of the day, I am a starving artist. I cried when he cast me in this film,” said Posey, who will also appear in Allen’s next movie. After the screening, presented by Fiji Water, the crowd, which included Laverne Cox, Pat Cleveland, and Chris Benz, decamped to the New York Palace to continue the celebration.