

Create a Handmade Community Parade

AT THE JOHN C. CAMPBELL FOLK SCHOOL
SUNDAY, JULY 29-FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 2012

A HANDMADE IN AMERICA SMALL TOWN CONVERSATION WITH INSTRUCTORS MARTHA ENZMANN AND JUDI JETSON

Build large parade puppets with costumes, print banners, and craft hand-held items from papier-mâché, recycled construction materials, and cloth. Then add expression by painting them with vivid colors. As a team, learn parade logistics in order to integrate your newly created parade items with music, movement, and storyline for the enjoyment of campus residents. Return home full of ideas for unique community or school events. No experience required—just a willingness to play.

TUITION

$508 (full-time local area residents are eligible for a 50% discount on a space-available basis).

Estimated materials fee $25-40.

MATERIALS: STUDENTS MUST BRING THE FOLLOWING:

- Backpack frame to build your puppet on (used is fine, check a thrift store)
- Large pieces of light-weight fabric for the puppet's body (old plain white cotton sheets are ideal and will be dyed and printed in class)
- Square flat household sponges for creating "printing stamps"
- Used Styrofoam produce trays for holding paint and stamping
- Apron or clothes you don't mind getting messy while painting
- Corrugated cardboard, paper grocery bags, newspaper
- Surplus construction material or other recyclables
- Various sizes of paint brushes, box knife, masking tape
- Pictures of creatures you'd like to create (optional - let your imagination loose!)
