

Gallery exhibit showcases water imagery artwork

The CONFLUENCE art show opening Friday at Julie Baker Fine Art features water imagery works by Shona Macdonald of Chicago and Ray Charles White of New York.

In her envelope series, Macdonald creates rivers and seascapes with the innards of envelopes. The works resemble flowing, earthy landscapes from a distance and a close-up view reveals the literalness of the found image.

White captures the fleeting beauty of water in a series of aluminum multiples. Exploring the emotions and personality of water, White photographs in nature and then plays with surface, texture and technology to create the enamel on aluminum series.

A public reception will be Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. Macdonald will be featured in an Art Talk on Saturday from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Admission is $5 to the Art Talk.

CONFLUENCE will be up through May 12.

Julie Baker Fine Art is at 120 N. Auburn St., Suite A. Call 273-0910 for reservations.
