

of Christianity. There is nothing more to hold them back, then, but their own weakness and want of courage,— which is lacking [52] to many European Christians as well as to the barbarians of this new world,— from renouncing their own evil propensities. Accordingly we are now changing our tactics, resolving to attack especially the adults; for, if the chief of a family is for God, the remaining members will not offer us much resistance.