

cold and the winds, which cause [52] wheat and trees to throw out strong roots, while appearing about to break and destroy everything.