journey to Monsieur

On the 27th, Atironta and Acharo returned; the Council, for the sake of which he had gone, ended in nothing; each one denied having been the author of the rumors, and cast back the blame upon his Companion.

Atironta's return.

On the last of January, father de Quen returned; he reported, by way of news, that Monsieur de Chavigny, as well as his servant, had come near dying upon his return from here, for want of having enough people to draw his sledge.

Toward the end of this month, the petty habitants seemed disposed to rebel against those who had the public duties and offices;

*Beginning of a disturbance among the
habitans.*
