

aside their private griefs, that they may duly honor the visit of the head of the Canadian church; and thus "the whole stratagem which the devil seemed to have invented solely to disturb the minds of the savages, and to prevent the good results of Monseigneur's visit, served but to make the virtues of our new Christians shine more brightly."

Duchesneau, the intendant, also visits the La Prairie colony, accompanied by many officials and prominent habitants. He lights the bonfire on St. John's day, holds a general council with the savages, and provides them with a bountiful feast.
