

which he will draw from Father bon; this 19th of may, 1750. He is paid.

I received from sieur barte, armorer, at detroit, The sum of 312 livres in discharge of sieur dumouchel, blacksmith, to whom The said barte owed That sum and more for the house in the fort that I sold him last year, 1749.

I owe a pair of mitasses to Monsieur La mothe, for tallow that he bought for me.

Monsieur La mothe asked me to say 30 masses, for which he will pay next year, 1751.

Monsieur navarre lent me 4 livres and a quarter of powder, with the cartridge, and 7 livres and a half of shot; to be returned when the convoy arrives.

Niagara lent me a quarter of a minot of wheat.

Cuillerier lent me 3 livres of salt, to be returned when the convoy arrives.

2 boards are missing out of the 40 of 15 feet; there are 5 planks over and above the sixty.

I borrowed 2 livres of coffee from Madame gervais.

I am paid in full for the land that I sold the late Caron; also for the house I sold dumouchel, august 7, 1750.

I delivered to chauvin 600 porcelain beads, to be given to one la framboise, a resident of the post of vincennes, who paid me 1,200 beads. Monsieur de Raymond, the Commandant at les miamis, will cause to be delivered to him by The soldier called sans-quartier the 600 beads that I still owe him.<sup>15</sup> The said soldier has or should have 1,550 beads belonging to me, on which I have received 4 livres of castor. I am writing to Monsieur raymond on the subject.

I remitted to chauvin, the blacksmith of this mission, The sum of 100 livres out of the 300 that he is to pay The said mission every year, as compensation
