Witness: DANIEL CURTIS.

Be it remembered that on the seventeenth day of September, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-three, personally came and appeared before me, Robert Irwin, jr., one of the justices of the peace in and for the county of Brown and Territory of Michigan, Pierre Carboneau, who, being duly sworn and qualified according to law, deposeth and saith that for thirteen years past he has personal knowledge of the occupation of a certain tract or lot of land situated between three and four miles from the west bank of Fox river, on the headwaters or branches of a small stream emptying into Fox river, known by being called (in French) La Rivière aux Gallia, bounded as follows, to wit: on the south side by a sugar camp formerly occupied by John Hardwick, on the north, west, and east by wild lands, being ten arpents in width, and forty arpents in length, be the same more or less.

DETROIT, November 1, 1823.

In the preceding case of Dominick Brunett, the commissioners decide that the same be confirmed, provided that the lines be so run as not to interfere with any claims heretofore confirmed, or confirmed by this board.

GREEN BAY, February 4, 1823.

Pierre Grignon enters his claim to a tract of land near Fort Howard, which tract is described in the following affidavit:

TERRITORY OF MICHIGAN, County of Brown, ss:

We, the subscribers, do certify that we have lived at Green Bay, county and Territory aforesaid, for the last forty years, with the exception of occasional short absences, and that we are acquainted with the claims of all the inhabitants at the Bay; that Charles Longlaid occupied a piece of ground lying and being on the west side of Fox river, Green Bay, immediately below the first creek that empties into said river, about fifteen acres in front on the said river, and extending back indefinitely; said lot or parcel of land was reserved as a meadow and for wood by the said Longlaid at least sixty years ago; that they know said land was occupied by the said Charles Longlaid and Charles Longlaid, jr., and Pierre Grignon, for the last forty years, until the American troops took possession of this place.

In testimony whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and seals, at the township of Green Bay, county and Territory aforesaid, August 29, 1822.

LEWIS MORGAN, J. P.

DETROIT, November 1, 1823.

On this claim of Pierre Grignon, the commissioners decide that the same be confirmed, provided that it shall not interfere with a confirmation heretofore made to Jaques Porlier, or with a confirmation made by this board to Alexis Gardapier.

Entry of a tract of land.

I, Joseph Jourdin, do hereby enter my claim to a certain tract of land lying and being situated in the county of Brown, Territory of Michigan, bounded and butted as follows, to wit: lying about three miles east of Devil river, in said county, and divided by a small stream, and surrounded by wild lands, containing one section of land, be the same more or less.

Witness my hand, at Green Bay, September 15, 1823.

JOSEPH JOURDIN.
