

WHALE WATCHING TOUR

La Jolla Kayak's eco-friendly whale watching kayak tours are the best way to get close to California Gray Whales as they migrate along the Southern California coastline. The two and a half hour tour, led by one of our experienced guides, takes you through spectacular coastal scenery teeming with wildlife. Guided whale-watching kayak tours leave twice daily from mid-December through the end of the season. Wetsuits are included.

Every year, as thousands of Gray Whales migrate from Alaska to the Gulf of California, they pass close to the Southern California coast. Whales begin to appear off La Jolla Shores in mid-December with sightings lasting sometimes through the end of March. With La Jolla Kayak's eco-friendly whale watching tours, you can leave the crowded and noisy excursion boats behind. Kayakers are able to get very close to the whales in their natural and serene environment. The two and a half hour tour takes you through spectacular coastal scenery teeming with wildlife. Along with Gray Whales you may also encounter Sea Lions, Garibaldi, Leopard Sharks and dozens of varieties of birds including Pelicans, Herons and fascinating Cormorants. Our staff tracks whale sightings near La Jolla Shores throughout the winter, increasing the chance that tours will encounter whales. However, since gray whales are wild animals, we cannot guarantee a sighting every time. Tours leave twice daily at 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. from mid-December through the end of the season and wetsuits are included.
