

New York State Conservation Partnership Program 2003 Grant Awards

The New York State Conservation Partnership Program (NYSCPP), funded through the Environmental Protection Fund and jointly administered by the Land Trust Alliance and the New York Department of Environmental Conservation, advances the goals of New York's Open Space Plan by making grants to New York land trusts. The program awards grants for three purposes:

- Transaction grants assist with the costs of acquiring conservation easements and fee lands, and providing public access to these properties;
- Staffing grants help all-volunteer and small land trusts add professional staff to increase the pace, quality and sustainability of their conservation efforts;
- Organizational development grants help land trusts expand their conservation programs so they can protect more acres, enhance their land and easement stewardship, raise more private funding, and plan for the future of their organizations.

The process of applying for the staffing grants involves a rigorous assessment of a land trust's strengths and weaknesses and its ability to meet national standards for best practices in land conservation. All grants require a match of at least 1:1 non-state funds. Staffing grant and organizational development grant recipients receive on-going technical assistance from Land Trust Alliance staff, which helps them become stronger and more effective conservation organizations. All grant recipients benefit from Land Trust Alliance training and educational resources.
