

25745 Hwy 36 - PO Box 19 - Anton, Co 80801
970-383-2411 970-360-5554 fax

Producer, there has not been a whole lot to get excited about in the market side of life. On Thursday the 12th the USDA will be releasing the September supply and demand report. The US and China are scheduling trade talk meeting to start again in October, hopefully they can get something figured out and we can move on with life. There is still a lot of question as to what the corn crop is going to end up being but for now we will not know until the combines start rolling. The corn exports have been on the slow side of life lately but there is still some getting booked but nothing to write home about. As corn harvest closes in on us give us a call and we will let you know what we have going on and help you find a home for your corn.

There has been a lot of chatter that up in North Dakota and Minnesota the spring wheat has been getting rained on pretty regular and they are starting to have issues with falling numbers and it is starting to sprout in the field. Maybe if we keep getting reports like these we will get to see some positive in the markets but it is hard to say how widespread this issue is and will be. Wheat exports had been pretty decent until last week when they came in on the low end of the trade estimates. As of right now we are fairly competitive in the export game but due to freight we are still a little high priced on some of the bigger sales.

The current market structure right now is not where we would like to see it at. But one thing to keep in mind is something can change at the flip of a switch and we can be moving in the right direction. With that being said give us a call and we can go over all our option of getting a plan in place to help you get your grain marketed.

Give us a call and see what we have going on for millet.

It may not be a good day to sell but it's a good day to put in a target.

keep on keeping

keep on keep
© The Mark Experts
www.markexperts.com

September 6, 2019

retransmission without the expressed permission of INTEL FCStone

Below is a range of analysts' estimates of export sales for the week ended 8/29/19.

Estimates courtesy of Reuters.

Units are in thousand tonnes (except for cotton in thousand running bales).

	Estimates		Actual	Last Week	Last Year
Corn	0-100	18/19	-165.9	-2.5	30.1
	500-800	19/20	416.7	858.9	1032.9
Soybeans	-(150)-100	18/19	69.4	95.2	0.6
	200-600	19/20	788.5	353.1	672.6
Wheat	400-800	19/20	312.1	661.7	379.8
Soy Meal	25-75	18/19	68.5	52.6	69.3
	100-250	19/20	158.6	245.4	289.5
Soy Oil	0-20	18/19	3.1	9.2	-3.7
	0-8	19/20	9.5	1.0	1.3
Sorghum	N/A	18/19	1.6	0.3	-2.3
Cotton	N/A	19/20	162.8	146.0	92.2