

For too long Ontario's laws have excluded migrant workers. Its time to #MakeItRight. We are all #InItTogether

We are launching a new provincial campaign to ensure migrant workers have the same rights and benefits as all Ontarians. For too long Ontario's laws have excluded migrant workers. This affects us all. It's time to #MakeItRight. We are #InItTogether.

Our first action is a Feast for Fairness on Saturday, October 12, at 1030am at St. Lawrence's Market in Toronto. More details..

All workers, including agriculture workers, should be protected equally under Ontario's labour laws. All workers should be entitled to minimum wage and overtime. They should be able to enforce these rights without worrying about being too late or having to under-claim how much they are actually owed by employers. Learn more...

All workers should be protected from being charged illegal and exorbitant fees by recruiters and agencies. Recruiters and employers should be registered, and the provinces and feds should work together with workers' home governments to make sure that protection is effective across all borders. Learn more...

Going home after work should be a relief but many migrant workers have no relief from the stress of work since they live at or near their workplace. They deserve decent housing and this requires inspection, enforcement, regulation, and viable alternatives. Learn more...

Farm workers need strong health and safety protections at work; domestic workers should be included in occupational health and safety laws; and all migrants should have immediate access to health services and other benefits that all Ontarians get. Learn more...

Migrant workers need stronger protections to make workers rights complaints and proactive enforcement of their rights. Migrant workers should have the right to change employers and stay in the country for settlement or employment standards purposes. Learn more...

Tell the Leaders of Ontario's Provincial Parties that they must work together to ensure migrant workers have the same rights and protections as all other Ontarians. Take action now!
