

BIO – Dylan Ingram (Returning Young Shakespearean)

Dylan is a homeschooling student, with a focus on Northern European and Scandinavian history, mythology, and Viking Age sagas and poetry. He is studying the development of the Germanic language family and is currently learning Norwegian Bokmål. His Shakespeare studies through YWS and Mike Stack's Vancouver Home Learners Shakespeare Troupe sparked his interest in Early Modern English, the etymology of words, and the history of language. He joined the YSW in 2013, and is also very involved in youth community theatre, both as an actor in six shows and as the Youth Costume Lead for five productions. Dylan has taken courses in Python, plays the violin and guitar, and is also a beginner percussionist, learning the Irish bodhrán.
