

Hero Saves the Day
(Brent Newcomb)

Monsters all around us.
Creatures in the trees.
Aliens' blinking yellow eyes.
Hush, you can hear them breathe.

Zombies all around us.
Zombies once our friends.
But they've been turned and won't be burned.
Our days are at an end.

(chorus)

(part 1 of chorus)

Do we need a(nother) savior? We've looked far and wide.
Do we need a champion? Do we need a guide?

(part 2 of chorus)

Do we need someone to lead us, to show us the way?

The Hero he will save us, child

(the) Hero Saves the Day, (the) Hero Saves the Day

Bureaucrats and black suits,
and other evil types,
Haunt the halls of every town,
with briefcases and gripes.

But the hero, he is watching.
The hero, he is near.
For there's no place for monsters, child.
What is it that you fear?

(full chorus)

(power music interlude)

Shadows all around us.
The ghosts mark him for dead.
Lurking, slurping in the dark.
Snap their teeth 'neath our beds.

But the hero smiles, the hero laughs.
The monsters they will pay.
You're just too old for monsters, child,
The hero saves your day.

(full chorus then part 2 then)

Hero saves the day, Hero saves the day... (repeat fade to end)
