Congrats to St Joseph By The Sea Junior Varsity on winning the CHSAA AA Intersectional championship. Coached by our own George Quinn along with Dom Palermo and Mike Consolmagno, it's the JV's 3rd straight City championship with them at the helm. Facing local rival St. Peters, the Vikings fell behind 4-0 but came back to tie the game in the 5th. The game remained tied until the bottom of the 9th when RCBC's Michael Marchese singled home the winning run for the walk-off win. Other RCBC players on the Sea squad include winning pitcher Jason Bassett, Anthony Catalano, Anthony Comanda, Anthony DePetro, Jack Marco, Dylan Swanson and Matthew Rao. Congrats also to RCBC players Mateo Gordon, Anthony Macaluso and Charles Porto from St. Peters on making it to the championship game.

Coach Lope's Baseball Thoughts

In This Issue - A Beginner's Guide To Recruiting

Quote of the Month - Willie Mays once said: "Getting paid to play baseball is a homerun. But teaching kids how to play baseball is priceless."

Since baseball players are starting to get recruited for college seemingly after just being breast-fed, it's probably time to start telling parents of boys just entering the early teenage years some Recruiting Advice!!! I will do this in easy to understand Power-Point form.

It's NOT EASY to get recruited to play college baseball. Of course, some get recruited early and quickly. However, that is the exception, not the rule.

About 10% of high school baseball players advance to play in college, however less than 5% will compete on the Division 1 level.

Division 1 is the highest level of college baseball. But parents must understand that there are different levels of D-1. There are teams that reach the College World Series and Super Regional. Then there's the group that gets to the 64 team regionals. Most teams are happy to reach their conference playoff and occasionally capture a conference title. Check the yearly Power Rankings....#s 1 to 150 are teams that are highly competitive. 151 to 300 are the less stronger teams.

There is Division 2. Some very strong teams at this level...overall below the top D-1 colleges.

Division 3 is competitive and many of these schools have excellent playing facilities and are tremendous academic institutions. The level of play varies here; the local NJAC Conference is equivalent to low D-1. Other D-3 schools are well

If you son struggles academically, he may need to attend a Junior College for one or even two years. Some JUCOs like a Brookdale or Glouster have D-1 caliber players. And many D-1 and D-2 schools will look to get recruits from a jr college. In the early teenage years, parents should be concerned that their son is developing his high school skills and his caliber of play is increasingly getting better.

PARENTS...DO NOT assume that because your son was a Little League star that he will be a high school star. High School is a completely different level than Little League. PARENTS...DO NOT assume that if your son is a star on Freshman or JV, that it guarantees Varsity stardom. COMPETITION GETS MORE DIFFICULT AT EACH LEVEL. WHY??? At each level, only the best survive. At each level, a percentage of players don't measure up and are cut. At each level, some players leave baseball. By the Varsity years, only the best remain. Plain and simple, your son must keep working hard. He cannot rest on his laurels.

Don't be showing Little League photos and videos to a college coach. Your son should play college baseball at the level he will succeed at. Do Not compete with other parents. I've seen parents have their son turn down an excellent D-2 offer. Why? Because their best friend's son signed with a D-1 school. Be realistic about your son! To be continued.
