

Application process

Applications for attendance at the Division III New FAR Orientation are accessible through the NCAA Program Hub. The Orientation will accept at least 25 participants each year. The program is open to FARs with two years or less experience in the role, and priority will be given to those who are attending the FARA annual meeting for the first time. Selections will also focus on accommodating the greatest possible number of Division III conferences, and on maximizing diversity in personal and institutional demographics for the class.

The application asks for basic demographic information about the applicant and their institution. It asks for a brief statement describing why the applicant wants to attend the FAR Orientation and FARA Annual Meeting, and it requires the applicant to upload a one to two-paragraph endorsement from the applicant's president/chancellor, athletics direct report or director of athletics supporting the individual's application and commitment to active engagement as FAR.