Brimfield residents may see new development

By KELLY MALE

A golf course rezoned for light industry, commercial, general commercial and light industrial use is one of several recent changes to the zoning at Brimfield Township. A golf course rezoned for light industry, commercial, general commercial and light industrial use is one of several recent changes to the zoning at Brimfield Township.

There have been ongoing legal battles between the Portage County Regional Planning Commission and township officials over rezoning a golf course to light industrial use. The golf course is located in Brimfield Township and is now under dispute.

Township officials have been working with the Portage County Regional Planning Commission to try and find a solution to the dispute. The commission has approved the rezoning, but township officials have appealed the decision.

There is an ongoing legal battle between the Portage County Regional Planning Commission and township officials over rezoning a golf course to light industrial use. The golf course is located in Brimfield Township and is now under dispute.

There have been ongoing legal battles between the Portage County Regional Planning Commission and township officials over rezoning a golf course to light industrial use. The golf course is located in Brimfield Township and is now under dispute.

Township officials have been working with the Portage County Regional Planning Commission to try and find a solution to the dispute. The commission has approved the rezoning, but township officials have appealed the decision.

The idea is to provide a parking lot for the golf course, which has been approved for use as a public park.

Township officials have been working with the Portage County Regional Planning Commission to try and find a solution to the dispute. The commission has approved the rezoning, but township officials have appealed the decision.

The idea is to provide a parking lot for the golf course, which has been approved for use as a public park.

Township officials have been working with the Portage County Regional Planning Commission to try and find a solution to the dispute. The commission has approved the rezoning, but township officials have appealed the decision.

The idea is to provide a parking lot for the golf course, which has been approved for use as a public park.

Township officials have been working with the Portage County Regional Planning Commission to try and find a solution to the dispute. The commission has approved the rezoning, but township officials have appealed the decision.

The idea is to provide a parking lot for the golf course, which has been approved for use as a public park.

Township officials have been working with the Portage County Regional Planning Commission to try and find a solution to the dispute. The commission has approved the rezoning, but township officials have appealed the decision.

The idea is to provide a parking lot for the golf course, which has been approved for use as a public park.