

MESSAGE FROM OUR CHIEF

It is back to school time and with the school year starting August 17th, we have once again increased our police presence in and around the schools to proactively encourage safe driving practices. The weather is nice, the pedestrian traffic flow is high, and some drivers are challenged with time management (kids to school and off to work on time) and other issues. When all else fails, our visibility and presence in marked and unmarked police vehicles gets attention and generally makes people more conscious of their driving habits.

This police practice has been intended to encourage everyone to drive safely. You may be having a bad morning and feel like you can catch up with your day by just driving a little faster or just ignoring a few traffic laws, but life will suddenly get worse if you have an accident and someone gets hurt. Shaving a few minutes off your commute time, may turn into a lifetime of misery or sorrow for your actions. The kids are precious and hopefully all focused on learning as they get to school, but they generally pay no attention to the vehicles around them. You should use your best driving practices every time you get behind the wheel, but especially in the school zones.

Another area of caution is when commuting around school buses. The stop arm and blinking lights are there for a reason. They mean "STOP" and to disregard the stop arm is a misdemeanor and mandatory court appearance. There is nothing in life important enough to endanger children. The law also allows the police to use the bus driver's observations to issue a citation to the registered owner of the vehicle. So if you are in too much of a hurry to care, just remember that a police car does not have to be there for the citation to be delivered to you at a later date. The police department will work closely with the school bus services in our city to pursue offenders that violate these laws.

Patterns do develop and certain locations become more susceptible to "stop arm" violations. With coordination from the school corporations, we will increase patrols in areas with frequent violations. There may be a police vehicle waiting up the road to make the traffic stop, provide a lengthy delay for your commute, and take the enforcement action. We may not catch all of them, but with some creative policing, we can make a safer commute for our school children. My hope is that EVERYONE would be more conscious of their driving. So please, ask all the drivers in your home or in your family to use their best driving habits in and around the schools and the school buses.

Chief Rick Zormier

DID YOUKNOW?*Distracted*Walking

According to a study 61 children are hit by cars every day in the United States, most often during the hours before and after school, and peaking in September. And, there has been a noticeable demographic shift. It is now much more likely a teenager will be hit by a car than his younger counterpart. With this knowledge, the National Safety Council is focused on efforts to eliminate distracted walking – specifically walking while texting. According to a study kids age 13 to 17 send more than 3,400 texts a month. That's seven messages every hour they are awake. Before your children head out, remind them of these year-round safety tips: Never walk while texting or talking on the phone. If texting move out of the way of others and stop on a sidewalk. Never cross the street while using an electronic device. Be aware of your surroundings. Always walk on a sidewalk when one is available.

Fake Checks

The Federal Trade Commission, the nation's consumer protection agency, wants you to know that counterfeit check scams are on the rise. Some fake checks look so real that bank tellers are reporting being fooled. The scammers use high quality printers and scanners to make the checks look real. Some of the checks contain authentic-looking watermarks. These counterfeit checks are printed with the names and addresses of legitimate financial institutions. And even though the bank and account and routing numbers listed on a counterfeit check may be real, the check still can be a fake. These fakes come in many forms, from cashier's checks and money orders to corporate and personal checks. Could you be a victim? Not if you know how to recognize and report them.

Fake Checks: Variations on a Scheme

Counterfeit or fake checks are being used in a growing number of fraudulent schemes, including foreign lottery scams, check overpayment scams, Internet auction scams, and secret shopper scams.

Check overpayment scams target consumers selling cars or other valuable items through classified ads or online auction sites. Unsuspecting sellers get stuck when scammers pass off bogus cashier's checks, corporate checks, or personal checks. Here's how it happens:

A scam artist replies to a classified ad or auction posting, offers to pay for the item with a check, and then comes up with a reason for writing the check for more than the purchase price. The scammer asks the seller to wire back the difference after depositing the check. The seller does it, and later, when the scammer's check bounces, the seller is left liable for the entire amount.

In secret shopper scams, the consumer, hired to be a secret shopper, is asked to evaluate the effectiveness of a money transfer service. The consumer is given a check, told to deposit it in their bank account, and withdraw the amount in cash. Then, the consumer is told to take the cash to the money transfer service specified, and typically, send the transfer to a person in a Canadian city. Then, the consumer is supposed to evaluate their experience but no one collects the evaluation. The secret shopper scenario is just a scam to get the consumer's money.

Con artists who use these schemes can easily avoid detection. When funds are sent through wire transfer services, the recipients can pick up the money at other locations within the same country; it is nearly impossible for the sender to identify or locate the recipient.

Protecting Yourself

Here's how to avoid a counterfeit check scam:

Throw away any offer that asks you to pay for a prize or a gift. If it's free or a gift, you shouldn't have to pay for it. Free is free.

Resist the urge to enter foreign lotteries. It's illegal to play a foreign lottery through the mail or the telephone, and most foreign lottery solicitations are phony.

Know who you're dealing with, and never wire money to strangers.

If you're selling something, don't accept a check for more than the selling price, no matter how tempting the offer or how convincing the story. Ask the buyer to write the check for the correct amount. If the buyer refuses to send the correct amount, return the check. Don't send the merchandise.

As a seller, you can suggest an alternative way for the buyer to pay, like an escrow service or online payment service. There may be a charge for an escrow service. If the buyer insists on using a particular escrow or online payment service you've never heard of, check it out. Visit its website, and read its terms of agreement and privacy policy. Call the customer service line. If there isn't one or if you call and can't get answers about the service's reliability don't use the service.

If you accept payment by check, ask for a check drawn on a local bank, or a bank with a local branch. That way, you can make a personal visit to make sure the check is valid. If that's not possible, call the bank where the check was purchased, and ask if it is valid. Get the bank's phone number from directory assistance or an Internet site that you know and trust, not from the check or from the person who gave you the check.

If the buyer insists that you wire back funds, end the transaction immediately. Legitimate buyers don't pressure you to send money by wire transfer services. In addition, you have little recourse if there's a problem with a wire transaction.

Resist any pressure to "act now." If the buyer's offer is good now, it should be good after the check clears.

If You Think You're a Victim

If you think you've been targeted by a counterfeit check scam, report it to the following agencies:

The Federal Trade Commission

The U.S. Postal Inspection Service

Your state or local consumer protection agencies. Visit www.naag.org for a list of state Attorneys General, or check the Blue Pages of your local telephone directory for appropriate phone numbers.

Pokémon GO Players Fall for Phishing Con

The sudden success of Pokémon GO has scammers cooking up ways to cash in on the app's popularity. The latest is a phishing email that fools victims into thinking they need to pay for the game.

How the Scam Works:

You receive an email addressed to Pokémon GO players. The message reads: "due to the overwhelming response to our new Pokémon GO app and the need for more powerful servers we can no longer afford to keep your account as free." The developers are now charging $12.99 a month, and your account will be frozen if you don't upgrade. The email urges you to click a link, log in to the app store and purchase the "full version." Don't do it! The log-in form isn't run by an official app store or Ninatic Labs, the game's developers. It's on a third party site, and it is a way to steal users' passwords.

Unfortunately, this is not the only Pokémon GO scam out there. Before the app launched, scammers lured victims with the promise of getting early beta test access to the game. Then, a fake version of the game appeared in some app stores. As long as the app stays popular, scammers will devise new ways to fool players.

How to Spot a Phishing Scam:

Be wary of unexpected emails that contain links or attachments. Do not click on links or open files in unfamiliar emails.

Check the reply email address. One easy way to spot an email scam is to look at the reply email. The address should be on a company domain, such as jsmith@company.com.

Don't believe what you see. Just because an email looks real, doesn't mean it is. Scammers can fake anything from a company logo to the "Sent" email address.

Consider how the organization normally contacts you. If an organization normally reaches you by mail, be suspicious if you suddenly start receiving emails or text messages without ever opting in to the new communications.

Be cautious of generic emails. Scammers try to cast a wide net by including little or no specific information in their fake emails. Be especially wary of messages you have not subscribed to or companies you have never done business with in the past.
