

PAPPAGEORGE
HAYMES

Museum Park at Central Station

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

The Enterprise Companies /
Central Station Development
3,000 Dwelling Units
80 Acres

Located at the southern edge of Grant Park within a former rail yard and warehouse district bordering Chicago's Museum Campus, Lake Michigan and historic Grant Park, the property had the unique distinction of being the only lakefront land not included in the historic Daniel Burnham Plan. The area provided the unique opportunity to create a new urban infrastructure that responded to the rich historic context of Museum Campus while providing a springboard from which it could transition towards a modern architectural language. The complex, multi-phase development comprises nearly 3,000 residential units within twelve high-rise buildings and multiple townhouse configurations.

Best of 2008 Award, Best Project of the year, Midwest Construction Magazine for One Museum Park East

Merit Award Finalist, Chicago Building Congress for One Museum Park East

Good Neighbor Award, Residential New Construction, Chicago Association of Realtors for Museum Park Place

Good Neighbor Award, Residential New Construction, Chicago Association of Realtors for Museum Park Lofts I

