

Human Rights and Medicine: Defending Medical Neutrality at the Thai-Burma Border

Source: Back Pack Health Workers Team

Presented by:

Rohini Jonnalagada Haar, M.D.

Friday September 27th, 12:00-1:30pm

At Biological Learning Center, Room 001(Basement)
924 E. 57th Street (Pritzker School of Medicine)

Free and open to the public, lunch will be served

Rohini Jonnalagada Haar, M.D., works in emergency medicine at St. Luke – Roosevelt Hospital, New York City. A UChicago alumna, Dr. Haar received her A.B. in Political Science with Special Honors in the Biological Sciences in 2001 and her M.D. from the Pritzker School of Medicine in 2005. She did her medical residency at NYU/Bellevue Medical Center in NYC. Her clinical experiences in Haiti, West Africa and New York City have influenced her interest in evidence-based practice in low income settings, particularly in the post-emergency transition periods. She has worked on projects in Haiti, Palestine, Malaysia, Ethiopia, Morocco and Guyana as well as the Millennium Villages project (Earth Institute, Columbia University) and the Doctors of the World Human Rights Clinic in New York. Focusing on forced migration and health, Dr. Haar is working on her Masters of Public Health at Columbia University.

Sponsored by:

Human Rights
Program
The University
of Chicago

The Committee on South Asian Studies
The University
of Chicago

For more information, contact: Yaniv Kleinman at
ykleinman@uchicago.edu
Ivy Morgan at imorgan@uchicago.edu