NICK'S

FAMILY RESTAURANT

In 1967, Norvin "Nick" Raithel started Nick's Homestead in the family's old homestead. With five children at home and seven more to follow, Nick was looking for a way to make a living. "Every time I drove by the old stone house, I thought it would be a great place to start a country ham and chicken place...", Nick said in an interview years ago. Nick's mother, Milerene, had the farmhouse leased for three years, but as fate would have it, the renter wanted out of the lease because of a job transfer. After a little renovation, Nick and his mother opened with three dining rooms that would seat 44 people. "When we started, I didn't even know how to boil water, but mom showed me how and we used all her recipes", Nick recalled.

The menu consisted of pan-fried chicken and country ham cooked the old fashioned way, real mashed potatoes, homemade chicken gravy, green beans, cole slaw, applesauce and ice cream – served family style or as a plate dinner. The restaurant was certainly a local favorite. Its reputation for pan-fried chicken and country ham reached past Mid-Missouri and across state boundaries.

"People liked it and kept coming back, forming lines out the door", Nick recalls. Clearly, more seating space was needed so Nick's Homestead expanded in 1971. Lines formed again, so another expansion came in 1973. The restaurant then had 5 rooms that would seat 55 to 125 people. Nick's Homestead also accommodated many rehearsal dinners and banquets.

Raithel went on to open two more Nick's Homestead locations, one in Hannibal and one in Hartsburg. Nick Raithel credits his family for the restaurant's success. Many members of the family, including all 12 children had helped in all facets of the business. Nick Raithel died in December of 1999.

On November 5, 2001, Nick's son Scott, ready to move on from his current job, opened Nick's Family Restaurant at the Jefferson City Memorial Airport. Keeping with the family tradition, the menu remains the same as that of his father...featuring pan-fried chicken and country ham. Scott has expanded his menu to include breakfast, which is served Monday through Friday from 7:00 a.m. – 10:30 a.m.. The original dining area accommodated 60 people and with an expansion in 2002, the dining area now accommodates 72 people.

In addition to its day-to-day operations, the restaurant also offers catering services. Scott has a catering trailer for cooking on site at various events, including weddings, banquets and festivals. The restaurant can also be opened for meetings and private parties after regular business hours.

As of 2007, the Family Tradition has lived on for 40 years. Thank you for your business! -Scott Raithel
