The End/s of Anthropology

American Anthropological Association • 108th Annual Meeting
December 2–6, 2009 • Philadelphia, PA

Preliminary Program
The schedule is finally set for this year’s AAA conference in Philadelphia. In total, 3,596 papers were submitted for consideration and 3,462 were accepted; 609 panel sessions were submitted, and we were able to schedule 561 of them, including the panel sessions that section editors put together from individually volunteered papers. We received fascinating submissions, and we are very excited about the kinds of conversations we will have in December.

The conference theme, “The End/s of Anthropology,” asks us to continue examining the relevance and goals of our field today. The point is not simply to provocatively invoke the discipline’s potential demise or decreasing significance vis-à-vis supposedly “harder” social sciences that rely on the “objectivity” of numbers over the seemingly subjective exploits of the anthropological project and its marquee methodological intervention, ethnographic research. However, it is still highly productive to ask what contributions anthropology provides in an age defined by the hegemony of genomic research and statistical analyses as holy grails for the study of social questions. How might our goals, methodologies, products and discourses be reconfigured or rearticulated to effectively address twenty-first century problems and audiences, so as to produce work that is given greater consideration in public circles?

Ethnographers have started to retool their methodological interventions to approach new kinds of projects, with many calling for multi-sitedness, a specific focus on the culture of scientific research, and particular emphases on the challenges that come with studying a thoroughly media-saturated world. Other anthropologists remain wary of ethnographic attempts to delve into mass mediated sociality, to study several places at once, or to engage phenomena spread out over large expanses in ways that outstrip any individual ethnographer’s ability to experience them directly and holistically. There is ongoing debate about the needs for depth versus breadth, and how shifting the scope, scale and focus of one’s inquiry might impact ethnography’s specific contribution to the constellation of methodological options open to social scientific researchers. Conference submissions seemed particularly interested in these themes, which complicate the ethnographic project in fascinating ways.

After seeing the papers and panels that constitute this year’s meeting program, we are even more confident that it will provide a critical space for tackling these scholarly issues and their theoretical and political implications. Many paper topics and panel themes intentionally played with the double meaning of “ends” (as both conclusions and purposes) in this year’s conference title. Participants include a diverse group of academic and applied anthropologists. Some contributors define themselves as activists, while others demand more caution about anthropological forays into purposeful public and political involvement. These different perspectives should contribute to lively and productive discussions, and we look forward to seeing everyone in Philadelphia this December.

Diversify Your Meeting Activities

Getting the Most out of Your Meeting Experience

Setha Low
AAA President

Perusing the AAA preliminary program can be overwhelming for new and seasoned meeting attendees alike. It is, after all, the largest annual meeting of anthropologists in the world. There are activities designed for participants in all areas and at every level—from students, to new educators, to senior scholars and seasoned professionals. With such a large number of sessions and events, it can be challenging for individual members to determine what activities might be most personally valuable.

One key to getting the most out of the annual meeting is attending a diverse range of events. Support your friends at their sessions, but also go to a poster session, workshop and a business meeting, and see a film screening and plenary speaker. To learn more about what’s going on in anthropology today, do not hesitate to ask questions, to request session recommendations from your section or interest group, or to attend a new kind of event with an unfamiliar structure.

Association-Wide Events
There are few opportunities for so many of our members to gather in person, in one place. The Welcome Reception and Awards Ceremony is a time for us to socialize and celebrate the year’s award winners as a community. The AAA Business Meeting is more structured, but is another excellent way for all members to participate in the workings of the association. Our rotating Distinguished/Presidential Lecture is an opportunity to engage intellectually with the large number of members who attend and then stay to discuss its content and importance for their subfields.

Section Events
Individual sections offer a variety of events beyond their own organized sessions. These include business meetings, invited lectures, workshops and social events. Sometimes several sections sponsor an event together, which gives members an opportunity to develop new collaborative relationships while catching up with colleagues and friends.

Employment Events
The employer expo, organized and conducted by AAA’s National Association for the Practice of Anthropology, is an excellent chance for members to meet representatives of organizations that employ anthropologists. You can also participate in the career fair managed by AAA’s job placement team by signing up early for job interviews.

Exhibit Area
Do not miss the book vendors in the exhibit area! The exhibit hall is open throughout the day, Thursday through Saturday, making it easy to drop by in between other activities. Ethnographic film distributors and other exhibitors also attend, as well as granting agencies and representatives of other anthropological organizations, who are there to share information about their activities.

Workshops
The annual meeting offers dozens of workshops that develop and enhance members’ knowledge and skills in teaching and publishing, as well as advocacy and using statistical software. Many of the workshops are free, but you need to register in advance (see page 45).

Student Events
This year’s preliminary program offers a special listing of events geared toward students (see page 5).

Film Program
Every year the Society for Visual Anthropology presents current film, video and interactive media in a multi-day program. Learn more about this year’s award-winning visual work on page 46.

Philadelphia
AAA works hard to host annual meetings in accessible cities that offer a wide range of activities for those who have a chance to see the sites. Walk or use public transportation to reach compelling events throughout Philadelphia. If you live in Philly, offer to take visitors to your favorite museum or restaurant.

Presidential Address
Saturday, Dec 5 | 6:15 pm–7:30 pm
Setha Low will present the 2009 Presidential Address, “Engaged Anthropology,” which will be followed by the AAA Annual Awards Ceremony. For information, please see page 40.

The 108th AAA Annual Meeting will be held at the Philadelphia Marriott Downtown, 1201 Market St, Philadelphia, PA 19107. Registration and additional information is available online at www.aaanet.org/meetings.

>> Online Program

The 2009 online annual meeting program offers the most up-to-date schedule information, plus new and refined search and display features:

- Full listing of sessions, roundtables, workshops and special events
- Advanced capabilities for day, title, author and keyword searches
- Full abstracts, viewable for pre-registrants
- Itinerary construction tool where pre-registrants can select program events to create personal schedules

The itinerary tool is a new feature that allows you to create and update your personal meeting schedule. Print your schedule in advance of the meeting or view it on a PDA or smartphone in real time.

>> Confirmation Letters

All members who submitted annual meeting proposals have been emailed letters of acceptance or rejection. If you are a session participant and have not yet heard about your session, contact your session organizer. If you submitted an individually volunteered paper or poster, and have not yet received a letter, contact the meetings department at aaameetings@aaanet.org.

>> Registration

You can pre-register online for the meeting, workshops and roundtables at www.aaanet.org until October 15. If you registered for the meeting when submitting a session or paper/poster proposal, you do not have to register again. Advance registrants can pick up registration materials at the Philadelphia Marriott at the fifth floor foyer. Be sure to bring your receipt. Onsite registration will be available Wednesday, December 2, 10:00 am through Saturday, December 5, 2:00 pm at the Philadelphia Marriott Downtown.

Registration Refunds
Cancellation requests received by email or fax by October 15 will be eligible for a refund. After October 15, registrants will no longer be eligible for refunds or credits. A $35 processing fee is applied against all registrations refunded. Registration fees will not be refunded to presenters who cancel their participation in the program. Refunds will be processed after the meeting.

>> Travel

Philadelphia is conveniently located in the middle of the United States’ northeast corridor, making it accessible by car, train, bus and airplane.

Train
Amtrak offers early booking discounts as well as a 10% discount for conference attendees off the lowest available rail fare to Philadelphia, PA, November 29–December 9, 2009. To book your reservation call Amtrak at 800/872-7245 and mention convention code X70V-954. Convention travel cannot be booked via Internet. Trains arrive at 30th Street Station, which is five minutes from the Philadelphia Marriott Downtown. A taxi from the station to the meeting hotel will cost around $15.00.

Bus
Greyhound and several popular Chinatown bus routes offer daily arrivals to Philadelphia at extremely reasonable fares. Check out the following popular bus lines: Greyhound (www.greyhound.com/home), Peter Pan (www.peterpanbus.com) and Bolt Bus (www.boltbus.com/default.aspx). Additional bus lines can be found at www.aaanet.org.

Air
The Philadelphia International Airport (PHL) is 20 minutes from the meeting hotel. PHL is serviced by all major domestic carriers and is a hub for US Airways. A taxi from the airport to the meeting hotel will cost around $25.00.

Local Transportation
Take a couple of hours to explore the city by walking, taking a taxi or public transportation. The Old City Cultural District is within six blocks of the meeting hotel. For affordable travel throughout the city, try the SEPTA bus and subway system (www.septa.com).

>> Hotels

Booking a room in any of the AAA meeting hotels—where the association has negotiated special room rates and prime meeting space for the program—is an important way to support AAA and help keep meeting costs as low as possible. Staying at the meeting hotels is also convenient and helps you stay connected with informal activities and networking opportunities during the meeting.

Philadelphia Marriott Downtown—Meeting Headquarters
At 1201 Market Street, the main conference hotel is located in the heart of the original US capital, surrounded by Revolutionary history and culture. Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell are within eight blocks of the hotel. Many of Philadelphia’s finest restaurants, shopping and entertainment venues are also within walking distance.

Philadelphia Courtyard Marriott
At 21 N Juniper Street, this hotel is located in the “Heart of Center City” and across from City Hall. The historic City Hall annex was built in 1926 and transformed into a 17-story, 498-room Courtyard Hotel in 1999. The Philadelphia Courtyard is three blocks from meeting headquarters and offers free Internet access in all guestrooms.

The reservation deadline for these hotels is November 12, 2009. To obtain discounted rates, be sure to mention that you are attending the American Anthropological Association meeting.

To make a reservation at the Marriott Downtown or Courtyard Marriott call 800/266-9432 or visit www.aaanet.org/meetings for a link to the online registration service. A special student rate of $99.00 per room is available at the Marriott Downtown; roll-away beds will be provided at $10.00 upon request. The number of Marriott Downtown rooms at the student rate is limited, so reserve your space soon.

Student Accommodations
At 1301 Race St—just three blocks from meeting headquarters—the Philadelphia Hampton Inn offers affordable student accommodations for up to four people per room. The Hampton Inn provides guests with complimentary hot breakfast, high speed Internet and use of the health and fitness center. Rates are $135 for a single or double and $145 for triple or quad occupancy. To make reservations go to www.philadelphiacc.hamptoninn.com and use meeting code AAM.

>> Childcare

ACCENT on Children’s Arrangements will provide childcare during the meeting at the Philadelphia Marriott Downtown. ACCENT is a nationally recognized company that provides onsite children’s activities in a nurturing, safe, educational environment. ACCENT employs professional supervisors who are CPR and Pediatric First Aid Certified. The non-refundable pre-registration fee is $10 per child. The program will be available Wednesday through Sunday. Space is limited, so please register early. The hourly rate for children ages 6–36 months is $12, with a 3-hour minimum. The hourly rate for children ages 3–12 years is $10, with a 3-hour minimum. Advance registration is required by November 20, 2009 (see www.aaanet.org). If you have questions please call 504/524-0188.

>> Accessibility

If you require accessibility assistance because of wheelchair use, hearing or other impairments, please send a request by October 15 to AAA Meetings Department, 2200 Wilson Blvd, Suite 600, Arlington VA 22201, or visit www.aaanet.org and complete the online request for meeting accessibility form.

>> Exhibits

AAA’s annual meeting exhibition hours are 9:00 am–5:00 pm on Thursday and Friday, and 9:00 am–4:00 pm on Saturday. For information about exhibiting, contact the AAA Meetings Department at 703/528-1902 ext 1173.
