Status, Activities, Accomplishments This Year:

1. Elections

Five new board members were elected this year: Douglas Feldman (President-Elect), Clarence Gravlee, Juliet McMullen and Diane Weiner (members at large), and Rebecca Read (MASA student representative). Outgoing board members were Ralph Bolton, Lenore Manderson, Amorita Valdez, Beth Conklin and Adriana Petryna.

Jeannine Coreil stepped down early as SMA President at the end of the annual business meeting because she has taken early retirement from her university in August 2010 and has plans to pursue full-time writing. Following procedures outlined in the SMA Bylaws, the Nominating Committee used input from the Executive Board to select Carolyn Sargent to complete the remainder of Coreil’s term as SMA President through 2011.

2. Membership

Although most AAA sections have experienced a decline in membership in the past year, the SMA’s total membership of has held steady at 1279, and there has been a 15% increase in student membership. This increase has been due, in part, to a reduction in student membership fees to $20 that was implemented last year.

3. Financial Balances and Budgets

The fund balance for the SMA as of October 31, 2010 was $176,728, which is higher than the balance of $167,303 one year prior. As projected, MAQ revenues over the past year have exceeded expenditures. AnthroSource guaranteed revenues for AAA units for 2010. These have covered publishing expenses, excepting the cost of the Academic Editorial Offices. Given the scale of the MAQ, this is a necessary expense.

3. AAA Session Information

(a) Invited Sessions

- Circulating the Life Course: Towards an Anthropology of Care and Care Giving (double session): Thursday, 8:00AM-11:30AM
- Circulation, Obstruction, and Decay in the Anthropology of Science, Technology, and Medicine: Saturday, 10:15AM-12:00PM
- Circulating Discourses: Obesity, Body Size, Fatness, and Anthropological Debates about Methods, Ethics, and Representation in Obesity Research: Saturday, 1:45PM-3:30PM

(b) SMA Official Meetings and Special Events

- Pre-conference workshop on Cancer Narratives in Global Perspective funded by the Wenner-Gren Foundation
- Special Interest Group Chairs Meeting
- Special Interest Group Meetings (AIDS and Anthropology Research, Complementary & Alternative Medicine and Integrative Medicine, Council on Anthropology and Reproduction, Disability Research, Council on Nursing and Anthropology, Critical Anthropology of Global Health Study Group, Alcohol, Drug, and Tobacco Study Group, Medical Anthropology Student Association, Science, Technology, and Medicine Interest Group)

- Student Mentoring Breakfast

- SMA “Taste of Louisiana” Social at Mulates Restaurant

- SMA National Health Care Reform Task Force Meeting

- SMA Open Business Meeting and Awards Ceremony

- SMA Board Meeting

- MAQ Editorial Board Meeting

4. Spring Meeting Activities

The SMA met jointly with the Society for Applied Anthropology in Mérida, México in March 24-27, 2010. At this meeting the SMA board also convened and discussed plans for the annual meeting, including a special social event in New Orleans, and the SMA-sponsored international cancer workshop with Wenner-Gren funding.

The SMA Health Care Reform Task Force held a meeting at Washington University in St. Louis February 1-3, 2010 to strategize for action in the coming year, including establishing an infrastructure for the SMA to facilitate calls for research on health issues of national concern and dissemination of such research.

5. Mentorship Efforts

The SMA Board includes a representative from the Medical Anthropology Student Association. The graduate student board member serves as a conduit for mentoring. This may take the form of organizing workshops and sessions in consultation with MASA, on topics including job search skills, publishing, and employment opportunities. The SMA established a dissertation prize as well as two student paper prizes (one graduate, one undergraduate), in order to recognize outstanding new scholars who are honored at the awards ceremony. MASA is responsible for selecting the recipient of the SMA Mentoring Award. This year at the annual meeting, a special Mentoring Breakfast was held for students where several board members and other senior anthropologists met informally with students to discuss career opportunities and answer questions.

6. Additional Outreach:

The SMA holds a joint meeting every other year with the SfAA and routinely co-sponsors sessions with other sections. The Society seeks to engage academic and practicing medical anthropologists in workshops, sessions, and other AAA events. The SMA website serves as an important mechanism for outreach to anthropologists and the public. Through the “SMA Takes a Stand” process, the SMA encourages special interest groups to develop policy statements which are accessible on the website and disseminated to press and other media venues.

The SMA Global Directory is a searchable, worldwide database of medical anthropologists. The directory is open to academic, practicing professional, retired, and student medical anthropologists. The directory identifies name, contact information, fields of specialization, research interests, geographic specialization, and languages for each member, with options to enter more detailed information about past and current research, professional work and service, publications (up to five citations), ability to provide mentorship and advice, and membership in AAA groups and SMA sections. Individuals self-enroll, and submit their information to website manager Kevin Kelly to verify and activate the entry.

In 2010, the Global Directory focused on expanding the directory’s foreign listings, of medical anthropologists outside the United States. A letter of invitation was translated into four languages (Spanish, French, German, Portuguese) in addition to English and submitted to the medanthnet listserve of the European Association of Social Anthropologists. Global Directory coordinator Beth Conklin also undertook an ongoing project to send personal invitations to foreign medical anthropologists (when contact information is available) who have recently submitted to MAQ or participated in SMA conferences at New Haven, CT and Merida, Mexico.

7. Awards Presented

The special interest group Critical Anthropology for Global Health (CAGH) gave three Rudolf Virchow Awards including: the Undergraduate Student Paper award to Dara Carroll for her paper, Power and Dependence: Interactions Between Informal Caretakers and Patients with Mental Illness in Uganda; the Graduate Student Paper Award to Emily Yates-Doerr for her paper, The Opacity of Reduction: Nutritional Black-Boxing and the Meanings of Nourishment; and the Professional Award to Clarence Gravlee for his paper, How Race Becomes Biology: Embodiment of Social Inequality.

The AIDS and Anthropology Research Group (AARG) awarded the AARG Distinguished Service Award to Paul Farmer. The Council on Anthropology and Reproduction (CAR) awarded the CAR Graduate Student Paper Award to Shana Sandberg for her paper, “Resisting Intervention, (En)trusting My Partner: Unmarried Women’s Narratives about Contraceptive Use in Tokyo;” and the CAR Best Edited Collection Book Award to co-editors Marcia Inhorn, Tine Tjørnjo-Thomsen, Helene Goldberg, and Maruska la Cour Mosegaard for their book, Reconceiving the Second Sex: Men, Masculinity, and Reproduction. The Alcohol, Drugs, and Tobacco Study Group (ADTSG) awarded the ADTSG Graduate Student Paper Prize to Laura Jones for, The Medicalization of Menstruation, Hormonal Contraception…and Society.

The Eileen Basker Memorial Prize was presented to Elly Teman for her book, Birthing a Mother: The Surrogate Body and the Pregnant Self. The Charles Hughes Undergraduate Paper Prize was awarded to Emily Yates-Doerr for Nutrition and Logic of Care in Guatemala. The Stephen Polgar Prize Paper for best paper published in MAQ was awarded to Marja-Liisa Honkasalo for Grips and Ties: Agency, Uncertainty and the Problem of Suffering. The MASA Graduate Student Mentoring Award was given to Byron Good and Mary-Jo Delvecchio Good. The Career Achievement Award was given to Stephen L. Schensul, who then gave the keynote address, The Medical Anthropologist as Interventionist: Culturally-Based Approaches to Public Health Problems.

8. Future Plans/Activities:

(a) Plans are moving forward for the next independent SMA meeting in 2013, with the goals of meeting jointly with the European Medical Anthropology Network (contact person Anita Hardon, UAmsterdam) in a European country and of making the meeting global in scope and participation.

(b) Plans are in progress to hold an SMA board meeting at the SfAA annual meeting in Seattle March 29-April 2, 2011 and meet with SfAA officials to begin planning the next joint meeting of SfAA/SMA in Spring 2012.

(c) Plans continue to increase collaboration with practicing anthropologists.

(d) Plans initiated to engage more practicing anthropologists and other professionals in global health (WHO, NIH, NGO’s) with the SMA Global Directory.

4. Publication Timeline
Each issue was assembled and submitted by the Editors to the publisher on time in 2010.

5. Total number of manuscripts submitted
We estimate that we will receive about 180 manuscripts for 2010. At the time of this report, 162 manuscripts and commentaries were submitted, not including book reviews. 98 were new manuscript submissions; 52 were resubmissions; 12 were commentaries.

6. Total number of manuscripts accepted
Of the 162 manuscripts submitted in 2010, 21 have been accepted. Including those submitted before 2010, 29 total manuscripts have been accepted this year. In addition, 3 manuscripts were accepted pending revisions, all of which were 2010 submissions.

7. Total number of manuscripts requested for revision and resubmission
Of the 162 manuscripts submitted in 2010, 35 were returned to authors to be revised and resubmitted. Including those submitted before 2010, 43 total manuscripts were returned to authors for revision and resubmission this year.

8. Total number of manuscripts rejected
Of the 162 manuscripts submitted in 2010, 66 were rejected. Including those submitted before 2010, 74 total manuscripts were rejected this year.

9. Total number of manuscripts withdrawn
We did not have any manuscripts withdrawn this year.

11. Length of acceptance process for 2010 manuscripts only
Average days from submission to editorial decision (complete process): 58 days. Compared to 2009, we have again trimmed the manuscript process time by 27 days. The average days from submission to editorial decision in 2009 was 85 days.

12. Manuscripts currently in process
48 total: 19 pending initial decision (to be reviewed/not reviewed – including new submission and resubmissions); 10 in review; 10 pending final decision; 9 accepted awaiting publication

14. Journal Citation Indices 2009
ISI Journal Citation Reports® Ranking: 2009:
Social Sciences, Biomedical: 20 / 33;
Anthropology: 26 / 68
Impact Factor: 0.949
Of 68 anthropology journals tracked by ISI in 2009, MAQ ranked 26 and had an impact factor (IF) of 0.949.
The impact factor is a measure of the frequency with which the average article in a journal has been cited in a particular year or period. The 5 year IF for MAQ is 1.442. For comparison with other anthropology and health journals:
15. Plans for 2011
(a). MAQ Reviewers. We continue to benefit from and are grateful for the dedicated service by many reviewers. Yet, we still expend a great deal of time and energy locating, enlisting, and shepherding reviewers. We continue to maintain our database of international anthropologists to help the editorial assistant and editors find reviewers more efficiently. With the shorter amount of time needed to find and invite reviewers, the manuscript process as a whole, from submission to decision, flows more efficiently.

(b). Enhancing the Review Process

Questions: First, how is the interface between different aspects of genomics (e.g., epigenetics, epidemiology, human biological variation) and public health being configured in diverse cultural arenas? How do state, institutional actors, and citizens become positioned in relation to emergent genomic practices aiming to develop molecular medicine? Second, what frameworks (theoretical and methodological) guide analysis in medical anthropology when the biological and the social are being framed in relation to genomics at the same time that epigenetics and environmental factors are becoming more central to genetic science? Contributors examine a range of genomic medicine and public health interventions and disease conditions, across several international/transnational cultural settings.

INVITED SESSIONS

For the AAA 2010, the SMA was allocated 7.5 hours (or 450 minutes). This year, we received a total of 4 panel submissions (two of which were double sessions). Of these, three were designated as “invited sessions.” To maximize our allotted time, one of these panels was co-sponsored with the Society for Nutritional Anthropology. We also agreed to co-sponsor another additional panel with the Society for Biological Anthropology. Please see attached Appendix for titles of the “Invited Sessions”.

ORGANIZED SESSIONS/SMA-ORGANIZED PANELS/POSTERS

In total, we received, 29 organized sessions, 144 individuals papers, and 24 poster submissions. All submissions were ranked and, where appropriate, individual papers were organized into thematic areas to be included as SMA-organized panels. For the AAA 2010 program, a total of 49 sessions (invited, organized, SMA-organized) will be featured. Please see the attached Appendix for the exciting list of themes explored.

PROBLEMS/SUGGESTIONS FOR FUTURE MEETINGS

We noted some problems in the process of selecting papers and sessions. In an effort to hold our organization to the highest standards, we make the following suggestions:

1. Because the deadline for the invited sessions is well before the general deadline for papers, the program committee makes its decision on invited status without having seen all of the organized sessions and individual papers. We noticed that there were organized sessions we would have ranked higher than those we had given the “invited” status to—we were unable to do anything at that point, because the notifications had already been sent out to the invited session organizers.

   Possible solution– instead of having individuals put their sessions forward for invited status, let the program committee rank all sessions and then give “invited” status to those sessions that the committee believes are of the highest quality. As it stands, Invited status goes to those organizers who are the most prompt and most pushy (we received many emails begging for invited status—we found this behavior very un-professional).

2. Individual papers in both organized and non-organized sessions were sometimes included, even though they were of low quality. This happened for two reasons.

   • First, if an organized session was ranked as acceptable, all the papers in that session were accepted.
     o Possible solution--The committee should either have the ability to reject specific papers within a panel that aren’t ranked as sufficiently strong, or the whole session should be rejected. (In other professional organizations the latter procedure is followed).

   • Second, individual papers that ranked at the very bottom were accepted into the sessions we were told to formulate if they filled a thematic need to complete the session.
     o Possible solution—Reject more papers in the first ranking.

Ning site (the new 'secure board area')
Situation: The company (Ning) engaged in a bit of 'bait and switch' when they realized the business model of providing free accounts was unsustainable. I was unsatisfied with the way the system worked anyway (their notification system was inconsistent, and caused posted messages to be missed, unless you logged into the system).
Action: I propose shifting to Google Groups, unless people are invested in that system (Ning) and want me to open a pay account with them.

Dynamic Content associated with SMA
Situation: The Web site will always be a repository for helpful info specifically related to med anth (job postings, syllabi, film database, news, updates, etc.), but the blog that Carolyn and I attempted to introduce a more dynamic area of the site. As with many blogs, it saw a lot of initial activity, but subsequently tapered off.
Action: There are (at least) two ways to reactivate this portion of the site:
1) treat the blog as a breaking news repository where most interesting news stories, updates, jobs, new issues of MAQ TOC, etc are posted (with relevant tags)- this will help people who depend on RSS feeds (like me) access the content effectively
2) treat the blog as a place for short-medium form essays/commentaries by medical anthropologists (I think this was Carolyn's vision).
Option 1 can be handled by the webmaster, and indeed, my plans (waylaid by an incredibly crazy Fall semester) were to implement this plan anyway, and regardless of the action on #2, I assume reactivating the blog with this purpose should go forward regardless.
Option 2 requires commitment by a smallish number of regular contributors, who commit to provide essay content on a semi-regular basis. Academic blogging has begun to be included in P&T committee dossiers (since it can reach a larger public), so this is a good space to recruit junior scholars or senior grad students who are interested in contributing content.

Podcasting SMA sessions
Situation: A desire to expand the outreach component of SMA activities, and podcasting selected sessions at the AAAs would help. SfAA has a very successful program in place, and we could model (or at least talk to) them regarding the process of podcasting select sessions (e.g. SMA Invited Sessions) as well as (perhaps) the presidential address. Alan Harwood recorded a session at the SMA conference (Yale) as a pilot test, and there are a number of ways that we could approach this (ranging from relatively low budget, to much more extensive). FYI: A number of disciplines are already doing this for their meetings.
Action: Discuss 1) whether the SMA board wishes to even consider this as an option and 2) how it might go about putting this plan into place.

Webmaster Transition: Situation: I cant do this gig forever (indeed, the last 6 mos have been a bit harried for me trying to manage too many projects/tasks), and we had talked in the past about having overlap between the incoming and outgoing student webmaster. I plan to graduate in Dec 2011, and will need to taper my involvement accordingly. The position was trial by fire for me, and having overlap will ease the next persons transition. Additionally, we need to consider what the focus of the Web site should be looking forward...as the nature of the web changes, we need to keep relatively current (I have some ideas/plans we can discuss at the meeting). The ideal candidate would work with me on enacting these updates, thus learning the ropes, but also helping with design and framing.

Action: I propose we discuss how to recruit the next candidate at the meeting (reminder: it is an appointed position, not elected), and start the process of looking/announcing post-AAAs. Then bring someone on board in the Spring, they can attend SfAAs, and I can receive the appropriate sendoff at the next AAAs (although my role should have faded somewhat by Fall...

I. Membership Data

Highest: June 2010: 1280 (usually highest due to annual meeting registration)
Lowest: Feb. 2010: 1220 (predominantly regular member drop)

II. Trends

a. According to Richard Thomas (AAA staff), based on a comparison with other sections, we are doing well in holding rather than losing membership over the past 2-3 years, in spite of the economy.

b. We have steadily increasing student membership, which bodes well for the future membership.

III. Recommendations

a. Request “lapsed membership list” and do a survey and follow up with recently lapsed members as 1) an informational process (why they lapsed and can we do anything about it), and 2) as a recruiting tool (AAA states that a certain percentage simply forget, and will sign up when reminded).

b. Work with Departmental Services program to identify and contact programs with high student enrollments in Medical Anthropology, and Med. Anthro faculty to advertise meeting sessions, SMA benefits, etc..

c. Work with Richard Thomas to get information into AAA Flyer for Montreal, and participate in the September AAA mailing.

d. Create an event for our “sustaining” members and get them to recruit more sustaining members.

e. Potentially create an event for our retired members, or at least contact them and see what services they feel would recruit others as we go into the Baby Boom retirement era. Are they still attending the meetings? Are they still getting or desiring specific services from SMA?
The SMA Global Directory is a searchable, worldwide database of medical anthropologists. The directory is open to academic, practicing professional, retired, and student medical anthropologists. The directory identifies name, contact information, fields of specialization, research interests, geographic specialization, and languages for each member, with options to enter more detailed information about past and current research, professional work and service, publications (up to five citations), ability to provide mentorship and advice, and membership in AAA groups and SMA sections. Individuals self-enroll, and submit their information to website manager Kevin Kelly to verify and activate the entry.

In 2010, outreach focused on expanding the directory's foreign listings, of medical anthropologists outside the United States. A letter of invitation was translated into four languages (Spanish, French, German, Portuguese) in addition to English and submitted to the medanthnet listserv of the European Association of Social Anthropologists. I also undertook an ongoing project to send personal invitations to foreign medical anthropologists (when contact information is available) who have recently submitted to MAQ or participated in SMA conferences at New Haven, CT and Merida, Mexico.

An issue for consideration is the directory's search criteria capacities:

Entries currently are searchable by last name, geographic area of specialization, and area of specialization. It also includes lists of members of SMA Special Interest Groups. The directory is open access, searchable by anyone on the web.

The 29 categories for areas of specialization are topical categories (e.g., alternative medicine, biomedicine, child health, disability, ethics, evidence-based medicine, global health, health and migration). HIV/AIDS is the only specific disease category. It may be worthwhile to consider whether other kinds of categories, and ability to search according to additional criteria, might enhance the directory’s usefulness to facilitate connections among medical anthropologists.

In May 2010, President Jeaninne Coreil and Robert Hahn communicated with staff at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta about the Global Directory's utility to identify specialists in particular areas, especially in crisis situations such as epidemics and disasters. The geographic and specialization categories in the directory’s current configuration are broad and may not easily facilitate the more precise identification of experts needed by organizations such as CDC.
