

"MAYBE NOBODY WILL NOTICE I MAY HAVE GLUED MY HAND TO MY PHONE"

TECHNOLOGY

New app reveals what you should be earning

Stylist picked up on our fascination with salaries months ago when we launched our landmark salary survey. So we were very keen to check out the new app from recruitment specialists Robert Walters that lets you benchmark your earnings at the touch of a button.

As well as generating the salary you should be earning you can also compare your salary to what the same job gets paid in other countries, useful if you fancy working abroad.

We road tested the app on Elizabeth, 28, a lawyer. "It's brilliant," she told Stylist. "Not only did it assess how much my pay should be now, it predicted what it should be in a year's time, too. It makes me feel more confident about discussing a rise."

FINALLY, YOU CAN GET A PAY RISE BY PLAYING WITH YOUR PHONE

One downfall of the app is that it doesn't give salary scales for those in the media or creative industries, so we'd recommend payscale.com, which will accurately predict what your salary should be.

Download the app for free at robertwalters.com/salarysurvey; visit payscale.com

JOIN OUR MASTERCLASS WITH ENTREPRENEUR JULIE MEYER ON FRIDAY AT 1PM AT STYLIST.CO.UK