

TOURISM IN ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Key to Our Growing Economy

Tourism is one of the leading industries in Arlington County, an important source of tax revenues and a key economic development tool. Arlington's hospitality community serves the traveling public, enhances the quality of life of area residents, and helps produce growth in other sectors of our economy. As the primary gateway for attracting Washington, D.C.-area visitors into Virginia, Arlington has been the Commonwealth's #1 county for tourism economic impact since 2009.

Tourism in Arlington is comprised of diverse businesses – local and national, small and large:

- Hotels
- Stores
- Restaurants, Bars and Night Spots
- Transportation Companies
- Service Providers
- Events
- Attractions
- Arts Organizations
- And More!

More than 6 MILLION visitors to Arlington spent nearly

$3 BILLION

in 2014. That's equal to 4 years' attendance at the University of Virginia for more than 25,000 in-state students.

Each Arlington visitor spends an average of $207 per day. A family of four would spend nearly $1,700 on a weekend visit.

=

This is enough to fill Verizon Center nearly 1 ½ times with annual payrolls totaling more than $921 million.

Tourism accounts for nearly 25,000 jobs in Arlington.

TAXES$

Tourism generates visitor taxes, creating revenue for County and Commonwealth needs.

- Nearly $81 million in local taxes
- Nearly $108 million in state taxes

Without these revenues, each Arlington household would spend an additional $1,800 annually in local and state taxes, which is equal to around 60 bags of groceries.