WELCOME TO RENDEZVILLE

Access and build detailed festival and conference schedules via this cost-effective web app.

Rendezville is a customizable web app that designs a schedule for conferences and festivals specifically related to your interests and needs. "Rendezville's mission is to offer a cost-effective solution that enables event organizers to build event apps with a high engagement rate," says Joseph Tzeng, Rendezville's founder.

Event planners can go to Rendezville's website and create an account by entering event information, such as date, times and a description of the event. They can then add an app icon and details, such as a specific speaker, performer and venue.

Attendees can favorite certain events by clicking the heart icon, which helps build personalized schedules.

For both attendees and event planners, Rendezville is completely free to try. Event planners publishing an event, however, will be charged a one-time fee of $1,000 once they are absolutely satisfied with the app. "By staying out of the app stores but having all the functionality of an app," explains Tzeng. "We are able to keep prices below most app creators, but still have a highly beautiful, functional, and interactive festival and conference schedule experience. Better yet, your event schedule is reachable from any mobile device that has a browser, not just iOS and Android devices."
