MESSENGER

Welcome to Our Worship

Sunday Morning Message: Jesus' Temptations
Sunday Evening Message: In the Last Days part II

The Older to Teach the Younger

One of the greatest needs facing the New Testament Church today is the need to involve both the elderly and the young in active service to our Lord. The need for greater involvement crosses all generational boundaries. We need the young of today involved with active service to Christ. We need the older and more experienced members of the church involved in active service. There is a place and a very great need for both the older and younger generations to be more active in the greatest work on earth!

On the young side of the ledger, there is a great deal of disappointment. Young people that were reared in Christian homes are now leaving the Church in record numbers. Other young people that were reared in Christian homes are steadfastly refusing to become obedient to the gospel of Christ. The population of young men and women that are leaving the home to enter our schools and Universities or the workplace that have not yet obeyed the gospel has never been greater than it is today.

Older Women Teaching the Younger Women

Titus 2:2 says, "That the aged men be sober, grave, temperate, sound in faith, in charity, in patience." In practically every walk of life younger men have needed the example of older men to help them learn successful living. There is no place where this idea is more clearly stated than in the words of Solomon, the wisest man born of flesh in Proverbs 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Young men are as clay in the hands of more experienced and serious minded men. They (the older men) can from them (the younger men) to be vessels of honor and purity.

Paul also encouraged Titus to prepare the older men to teach the younger men how to be temperate. Simply stated, to be temperate is to possess self-control. One of the sweetest possibilities for our elderly members of the Lord's church is to have the "grandparents" attitude toward the younger generation. The ability to love other people unconditionally is one of the most needed things in our society today. The very foundation of Christianity is Love (1 Corinthians 13:1-3).
