Love & What to Pay Attention to With Pleiadeans

Spotlight

The people that we're going to be talking about this month in our Spotlight are Pleiadeans. Pleiadeans are human-looking people. If you saw a Pleiadean being on Earth you would not necessarily know that it wasn't a human. Our human genetics and the genetics of the Pleiadeans are very similar. Pleiadean people look very human-like. They are similar looking to Scandinavian people. They have blondish hair coloring and light skin. Their blood is red like ours is so their skin is a little bit pinkish. Generally, they have blue eyes that are a little bit larger ours. Otherwise they have similar features to what humans have. They can eat food and drink liquids. Their internal organs are similar to ours which is a lot to say considering there are many humanoid-looking species that have completely different internal organs than what human bodies have.

Pleiadeans are very similar to us. If you were to go to a Pleiadean world, let's say, wherever they're from (they have many worlds that they inhabit) it is likely that you would pretty much be able to function there similarly to how we function here. They require parameters externally for their forms that are very similar to what we need. Water, oxygen and food. They don't eat the flesh of any living creature. They do eat substances that come from plants but not in the way that we do. We grow plants so we can eat them. They take from the plant what the plant would give away anyway. Berries, mushrooms and other things that are sort of extra that the plants would put out in abundance are seen by them as an exchange. A lot of the food that they eat is plant-like. Some of it is in a paste form, sort of like us having a really cool smoothie with something really tasty from their viewpoint but maybe not so tasty to us.

They are pretty much our height. Between 5 feet and 6 feet; 5 ½ feet is more common. They have two sexes, male and female. They can have children in the traditional way that's more organic versus having to genetically engineer a child although they can do that as well if needed. That would be more like to support or cure a particular issue or malfunction or something like that in the body. They utilize Love energy in everything that they do. The reason Pleiadeans are so closely associated with the Angelic energy is not because they are necessarily angels (as in the Kadishtu group). They're not that. They are from the Paa-Tal group. They have the frequency of Unconditional Love, playfulness and Joy. There is a lot of the pearlescent energy (pink and pearl) kind of like seashells have. That is a frequency that is generally associated with these beings. It is what they bring through themselves when they interact with other species. This is why they are so loved, welcomed and supported. They seem like these incredible Light Beings that come in because that is what they truly are.

They are from the 5th Dimension. That is generally their range. They can go down into the 4th Dimension but not really into the 3rd Dimension unless they have specialized equipment. They can use technology to do it but it's not a common thing for them. Not anymore, at least. A long time ago they ascended higher up in frequency.

Pleiadean beings are refugees from the Lyran wars. In the Lyran star system where Vega is the main star (and there are others) during the time when the Draco and Ushamgal came in and tried to take over there were wars that lasted really, really long periods of time – thousands of years. Eventually a lot of people who populated that region were a little bit different so it's not to say that everybody from Lyra looked exactly the same and had exactly the same culture. No. They were genetically related, so they were like cousins. They lived on different worlds and most of them who were not destroyed in the wars ran. When they ran, they became refugees that used their technology, their spaceships, as the means to travel through the Pathways of Light, through the Stargates to find different worlds where they could exist. They could not exist without a world. They don't live in spaceships.

This particular group that we now call Pleiadeans were one family a long time ago. Refugees of the war like that that came to the Pleiadean star system that found themselves a few worlds in there. There's Alcyone and a few other ones. They are a little bit different now because genetically they became slightly different branches. They are sort of cousins with each other. People from Alcyone are a little bit more electric and a little bit taller. They have darker hair; still brown but kind of like hay that is a dark color. Their eyes could be gray or like yellow or blue. The typical Pleiadeans that we think of as being Pleiadeans are typically blonde with blue eyes. There is a little bit of difference in the two groups. They were shorter and they are definitely more magnetic.

Generally, when we think of Pleiadean beings we think of them as the refugees of the war which is their karmic wound. They had experienced the feeling of being connected with their Star System, connected with their world. They had to leave because something external came in and was interacting with them in such a way that it was a choice of leaving to survive or dying. Many did die. As a species they do carry that karmic wound. There are lessons connected to that but that was so far back prior to Earth's history that I won't be going into that.

When they integrated into the Pleiadean Star System that is where this culture grew. Even though they are refugees from Lyra as well as many other ones including Sirian (there were refugees from Vega) each of those refugee cultures developed very differently utilizing the planet. Some of them got affected chemically by the planet. For some of them their DNA actually changed a little bit. Some of them hybridized themselves with specific genetics of the world on which they landed because that was the way to make their bodies more resilient within that planet.

To us that might seem a bit 'out there' or like some sort of magic but that's a pretty standard procedure. If a group of conscious beings Dimensionally, let's say 5D, moves to another world because they have to so it's not a planned event and now that's the world where they have to survive, first thing they're going to do is if their body is having difficulty with that planet, maybe breathing the type of air that the planet has. Not completely. It still has to be compatible but certain gradations like the air is too thin or the water is too heavy molecularly or there is something else like there is a more specific chemical that they are used to. You know, some abnormalities versus whatever they are normally used to, one of the first things they're going to do is to look for what they could add into their DNA to augment themselves a little bit. They would still remain in themselves but now they would have some genes active that would allow them to exist within the parameters of the world that they landed on.

Pleiadean beings did the same thing. In part the look that they have is because they didn't do as much of the changing versus let's say the Alcyone people who did more of that to exist on their world. Their world is harsher. The Pleiadean world has essentially like our view of paradise. Like beautiful rivers, forests, mountains and its gorgeous. That's the world where they now live and that's where their culture developed.

As the Pleiadean culture developed everything was about this beautiful pearlescent Love. The perception of Love and connectedness permeates Pleiadean culture. It is something that connects it from each individual to another without losing their individuality. They do have a Self that is individual. They're not a group mind or anything like that. They are still individual people, but they are very interconnected. Think of it like being a part of some internet. Almost like a web in your mind and your perception all the time. That means that whatever actions that they are going to take including even thoughts or parameters for thinking are within what's beneficial for the whole.

If somebody had an idea that does not fit with the rest it will be entertained. It will be allowed to exist so that everybody could look at that. Then it would either dissolve as in "We don't want it. It doesn't fit with us" or it will be amplified as in "Wow. This individual brought in something none of us had thought about." So, there is individuality and they can bring in unusual ideas but it's not a very common thing in that culture.

We here on earth are of extremely wide-ranged perceptions. We have many different points of view. We are all so different because there is so much separation. Like two components of duality, they are very far apart. In the Pleiades there is still duality, but it is very close together. Their range of individuality is much, much narrower compared to us. They think we're incredibly creative, for example. They are not as creative. But they are loving, and we are not as loving. So, there are differences.

A long time ago the Pleiadean beings came here to Earth. They oversaw some of their own experiments here. They participated in the Namluu experiment. That was a long time ago when a being was created with the DNA of 22 different species and they were one of those species. And so on. They also witnessed the sort of earlier human beings. We had many different types here. At some point there were 7. That was reduced to 3 of which included homo sapiens which we now know as ourselves, Neanderthals which was the experiment of another group that was related. They were cousins genetically from the 500,000 years ago when they split into two. They're not completely separate. And 3rd is the Dravidians, I think they're called now. That is another type of a human that split off that human tree branch even further along.

Pleiadeans were here mostly interfacing with the Sapiens branch. That is the one that was of interest to them. They were not the creators of it but they participated in educating this specific branch or us, humans. When the Fall of Consciousness happened because of the planetary changes. Then reptilian beings that were here at the time created a sort of contract with humans in the sense of "We'll protect you, but you have to worship us." Which meant they wanted us to give away our power to them. Human beings agreed.

Pleiadeans essentially got trapped here because they so over-merged with the humans that they felt that that was an incorrect action and the fact that the Solar Council and the overall Kadishtu Guardians Council allowed that, they saw that as wrong. I'm not going to go into too many details of that, but the basics of this story is that Pleiadeans and humans coexisted; so were the reptilians. Reptilians are the branch of the same ones who a very long time ago were the cause for why Pleiadeans had to become refugees. They were the ones who caused the war so you can see that they were not necessarily very friendly with that specific branch of reptilians and vice versa but they stayed away from each other.

Then when the planetary changes happened the Pleiadean group of educators here on Earth. It was actually a pretty small group (it was under a hundred people who were here). They were educators here. They had mystery schools, they were supporting human beings and they wanted to continue that despite the planetary changes. They were already merged with the people and they felt all of this human fear and desperation so that wobbled the Pleiadeans a lot. They didn't know what to do with that because they had never experienced those really strong negative emotions. When the reptilian beings essentially said that "Hey, human beings. We will protect you; just give up your power" human beings did that. That was a choice of the human beings and it wasn't really a correct choice but hey, it was a choice they made. We have freedom of choosing. Free will.

Now human beings are still dealing with that karmic pattern of giving away our power, of learning through powerlessness. We are just now fully stepping into "Wait a minute. We want our power back. We are finally realizing that we actually have the power." As soon as human beings do decide that, they will get to have the power back. That's the Universal Law. At that moment in history when that change happened the Pleiadean beings were here. They became absolutely overwhelmed with negative emotions from human beings who were terrified. They did not like that choice that the human beings made of giving up their power until those humans were too immature to make a choice in the first place so they need to be rescued instead of allowing them now to learn through powerlessness.

The Pleiadean delegation that was here insisted on trying to rescue even though the Solar Council actually overruled them, saying that human race was conscious enough to make that choice. It's an unfortunate choice but it is still a choice. So, the Pleiadean group got stuck here because with frequency they so merged with their Love energy. They so merged with the human beings, but then human beings chose to go down. They chose to become powerless and with that they sort of dragged the Pleiadeans.

The planet went frequency-wise down, human beings ranged from 3D and literally became limited to 3D. Some of the Pleiadean beings who were part of that delegation ended up going with them so they could not leave. Their lifespan physically is longer than ours but eventually that runs out too, so they died at some point. When those Pleiadean beings, 100 or so who got stuck here with us died they could not go home because they karmically then were linked to the human evolution and to our path. They had to clean up their karma (of rescuing) first in order to fully move on.

That is exactly what they are doing. That's why we have such a large group of Pleiadean Starseeds compared to any other Starseed delegations here now. Beings that are incarnate in human bodies just like that Pleiadean group that got stuck here, they have to now incarnate into human bodies because there are no more Pleiadean bodies here and they cannot go home. That's how we essentially ended up with the first Starseeds. They are those Pleiadean beings who tried to rescue us and then got stuck here. Their karmic pattern is cleaning up their perception of where their focus was. They were focused on not Enough-ness. They focused on the powerlessness of the human race in that moment. Because of their focus they amplified the situation to the point that it even linked them to this timeline.

What they are learning is how to step back into that energy of Oneness, connectedness and essentially whatever it is that they lost from their original perception of Unified Love instead of focusing on the pain. Because karmically if we forget the current Pleiadeans here on earth and we think of the Pleiadeans as the refugees from the Lyran wars, well they focused on pain as well. That became part of their culture. So even though they have a lot of Love and connectedness that is still one of their karmic patterns that as a species they are cleaning up.

As a species, Pleiadean beings are working on focusing on Enough-ness instead of pain. Because of their fluidity it's so easy for them to focus on pain when somebody is hurting. They have to really learn to be individuals that make choices to focus on Enough-ness instead of pain. The same goes for any Starseed that's here that is Pleiadean. That is still the same lesson. And even if you're not from the Pleiadeans it is still something that could be utilized by your system as we are working with the Pleiadeans this month.

Any time there is pain we have a choice. Pain outside of ourselves, in our bodies or in our emotions. Internal or external. It doesn't matter. Any time there is pain you have a choice. Do you focus on that pain or do you focus on something larger? For example, are you focusing on Unconditional Love, on supply or on a lesson ("What am I learning?"). Anything that takes you into Enough-ness and Oneness instead of on pain, which is separation. If we do that then we actually minimize pain so there is less of it happening. If instead we are focusing on pain all we do is that we merge with it so we amplify it. In our own body that's obviously not beneficial because then we're creating more pain. Same thing with our own emotions.

But you can even think about what that looks like for humanity, for example. Any time we fixate on all those people who are hurting at that point all we are doing is that we are amplifying that pain. That morphogenic field that perpetuates the victim powerlessness that created the pain gets stronger when we do that. We are adding energy to it. That's the last thing we actually want to be doing.

When there is pain what you want to focus on is the counteracting, counter-balancing component. Let's say Pure Unconditional Love, connectedness, compassion and what we are learning about as to why there is pain. Now you're still connected to it but you're adding a frequency note that is so much higher vibrationally that it is helping to transmute that negative morphogenic field. So, it's adding the power of your perception to the field of powerlessness. In doing so it dissolves some of that victim pattern and it amplifies inner power, inner Creator Authority and the power of making choices.

That's why it is so important to pay attention to where your focus is. That is the thing that the Pleiadean beings are learning. As they are learning, so are we. We are going to utilize their process for ourselves as well.

Be LOVE. Be FREE. Be GOD.
