

UK & US DEFENCE COOPERATION

A UNIQUE GLOBAL SECURITY PARTNERSHIP

Our collaboration extends across the full spectrum of defence, including operations, intelligence, nuclear co-operation, research and flagship capability programmes. As close allies in NATO, permanent members of the UN Security Council and leading nuclear powers, our cooperation is vital to international peace and security.

In 2021, USMC F-35 aircraft will deploy alongside UK lightning aircraft from the latest UK aircraft carrier - the HMS Queen Elizabeth.

Our troops train, fight and recuperate together. We work alongside each other combating terrorism in the Middle East and Africa, maintaining freedom of navigation in the Persian Gulf, providing reassurance to NATO allies in Europe, undertaking counter-piracy operations off the Horn of Africa, countering the narcotic trade in South America and the Caribbean and providing nuclear deterrence for NATO.

Our nuclear cooperation is delivered through the enduring UK-US 1958 Mutual Defence Agreement and Polaris Sales Agreement. This includes delivering the Common Missile Compartment program for future US and UK nuclear submarines.

The UK and US collaborate on some of the world's biggest and most advanced defence projects, the F-35, Carrier Strike, Rivet Joint, Unmanned Air Systems, C17 strategic airlift and Maritime Patrol Aircraft (P-8).

Maintaining co-operation on joint capability

- In 2016, the UK/US Cyber Memorandum of Understanding was signed to enhance cooperation on research, development, test and development in the cyber domain.
- Since 2007, the UK & US have been partners in the Defence Trade Cooperation Treaty.
- Our annual defence trade partnership is worth over $3billion.
- Based on our rich history of science, intelligence and technology collaboration, we are looking ahead to how we innovate to meet future shared challenges.
