Course Equivalency Credit
Course Equivalency Credit, also known as life-learning papers, identifies significant learning from past experiences for which the student has had no formal training. The student must articulate the experience and learning outcomes. Papers are typically 15 to 20 pages in length and may earn a maximum of 3 credit hours.

Professional Schools and Training Credit
In partnership with the Council for Adult and Experiential Learning, the American Council on Education, and the National College Credit Recommendation Service, Trevecca awards credit for learning which has occurred through professional schools and training programs which have been evaluated for college-level credit. In the event that no credit recommendation exists, students have the opportunity to utilize LearningCounts© for additional options to receive credit for non-traditional learning. Visit www.learningcounts.org for more information on this external service.

Military Training
Credit may be given for military education. An official record of the training is required and may be obtained at https://jst.doded.mil.
