Not one to lose his humor, David Burke Townhouse has made an indirect artistic reference to the restaurant game with a collection of drawings from a fantastical card deck called The Key to the Kingdom, created by Tony Meeuwissen. Specially commissioned lithographs from this transformational deck line the walls and grace the menus, paying homage to Burke's creative interpretation of classic American dishes. The menu features Burke classics such as Angry Lobster, steaks and chops, and whimsical desserts, all crafted with top ingredients in the classic technique.

With the opening of David Burke Kitchen, Burke brings his distinctive approach to SoHo, making his imaginative cooking style accessible to downtown New Yorkers and visitors alike, for breakfast, lunch and dinner daily. His menu emphasizes the highest-quality vegetables, beef and game birds with ingredients such as duck ham, Blue Foot chickens and beef cheeks. The restaurant's multiple spaces offer several different ways to experience Burke's locally-sourced, inventive fare, from the glass-enclosed Treehouse Bar to its unparalleled outdoor space. The open kitchen and glass-enclosed wine cave allow guests a peek behind the scenes, while Burke's theatrical style is reflected in the carving station, where a variety of meats are carved and whole-roasted fish, lobster and casseroles are plated in the center of the dining room.

Fishtail offers the freshest fare - provided by Litchfield Farms, Burke's company-owned fishing boat out of Brielle, NJ as well as Hunts Point fish market. With the sustainable seafood movement gaining momentum as more people become aware of both overfishing and environmentally-destructive fishing methods, Burke has created a menu that reflects his goal to make Fishtail the first sustainable-seafood restaurant. The menu reinforces his belief in providing diners with the highest-quality ingredients that do not compromise on integrity. Fishtail's menu is replete with fresh fish and shellfish selections - some off-the-boat simple; many with Burke's signature creative spin, highlighting flavor and technique.

Burke's dual-concept restaurant spans the 59th Street frontage of the world-famous department store offering a stylish, full service Burke Bar Cafe on one side, and a convenient Burke in the Box take-out and eat-in concept on the other. Bringing together delicious, affordable fare, top service and a fun atmosphere, David Burke at Bloomingdale's satisfies the cravings of the city's most discerning shoppers, visitors, and residents. Sandwiches, award-winning burgers, salads and small plates highlight the menus here, which perfectly complement a day of shopping.

Located just south of the theater district, Casa Nonna is a culmination of traditional Roman and Tuscan fare with a focus on the freshest local and seasonal ingredients. From salumi, cheese and antipasti platters, to house-made pastas and wood-fired pizzas, the menu is offered á la carte and family style, all meant to be shared. A stellar 100% Italian wine list, celebrating the quality and diversity of Italian grape varietals, complements the meal.
