Multicultural Grants Program
Okechi Womeodu Scholar Athlete Grant

ABOUT OKECHI WOMEODU June 2, 1988 – November 10, 2004

Anthony Okechi Womeodu was much more than a great tennis player, he was a son, nephew, brother, friend, and academic scholar with a very bright future. He was described by many as having a million dollar smile, “that launched a thousand friendships.” Okechi won a USTA national title at the age of 12.

Okechi, as he was fondly called, lived up to the meaning of his name during his 16 years – “God’s Gift”. He was a gift to his family and to the many lives he touched all around the country. He excelled as a student, participating in honors programs at all grade levels. At the time of his death he was a junior in the optional honors program at White Station High School in Memphis. His high school principal, Dr. Wanda Winnette, said “He was an all-around nice guy. I wish I had 1,000 more like him.” After graduation he planned to attend Stanford University. Years before when Okechi won the United States Tennis Association Boy’s 12s National Tennis Tournament in Alameda, CA he had an opportunity to visit the campus. He met Dick Gould, the tennis coach and played at the tennis club. He remarked then that he planned to return to Stanford one day as one of the top 3 men’s tennis players.

Okechi was blessed with incredible athletic abilities and had the demeanor of a champion on and off the court and fields. He was your ultimate sportsman and loved all sports, but the two that he focused on were tennis and soccer. His high school ring had a soccer ball for the stone and tennis rackets on the side. He was a United States Tennis Association nationally ranked tennis player at all age levels. One of the highlights of his junior tennis career was his participation in the Junior U.S. Open in New York City in 2004. Also in 2004, he was the singles and doubles winner at the Southern Open Championships, and made it to the finals of the ITF Chanda Rubin Junior Circuit in South Carolina with his doubles partner Jeff Dadamo.

He was a fierce competitor who remained humble and respectful of his opponents despite his achievements. Okechi had a wonderful engaging personality and smile. He made a point to reach out to younger athletes and was eager to hit a few balls with novice tennis players or share some soccer skills. The world of sports provided an opportunity to meet and develop friendships with peers of diverse racial-ethnic and geographic backgrounds. Okechi valued these friendships and many of his peers have found unique ways to honor his memory and pay tribute to the wonderful champion they loved. Okechi was wise beyond his years and illustrated that young people can teach all of us a lot about how to approach life.

He was as focused in the classroom as he was on the court. An eleventh grade honor student, member of the Junior National Honor Society and the Beta Club. Tragically, in November 2004, Okechi collapsed due to heart failure while playing an indoor soccer game. He was only 16 years old. This Scholar Athlete Grant that bears his name is a way to honor not only his talent off the court, but his determination in the classroom, and generosity to those who shared his same dreams and visions.

The objectives of the Okechi Womeodu Scholar Athlete Grant are to:

1. Honor the memory, life, and achievements of this exceptional young man, who otherwise would have had a very promising future, on and off the court.
2. Reward players who work to excel as much in the classroom as in sports.
3. Widen the net of opportunities to young minority players who aspire to excellence in competitive tennis.
4. Assure the careful nurturing of young players who may be candidates for USTA Elite Player Development Programs, and may have the ability to achieve national or international rankings.
5. Demonstrate the USTA resolve and commitment to multicultural participation in tennis.
