California Lab Exudes Cool Factor

a cuckoo clock that chimes once an hour—a reminder to the staff to take a break and stretch for five minutes.

The lab's "People First" philosophy also includes its customers. For instance, IDOC's case boxes are emblazoned with the tagline "Rock Star Doctors." "We want to make our doctors feel like a rock star in front of their patients," says Hong, who dreamed of being a rock star as a teenager. "I loved the feeling I got when I performed with my band years ago—joy, pride and excitement—and I want our doctors to feel the same way when they're working with us and when they're delivering an IDOC-fabricated restoration to their patients." LMT

IDOC sees 10-15 patients per week in its spacious shade-taking room off of the reception area and commonly receives thank you cards directly from patients.

Metal Department? Boring. Model Room? Zzzzzzz. Each department at IDOC has a catchy name—like "Metal Central," "Porcelain Empire" and "Digital Domain"—that reflect the lab's unique, fun personality.

A glass plaque in the lab's reception area displays one of the lab's core philosophies: "People First."

A personal trainer visits the staff to teach them gentle stretches to do throughout the day to prevent repetitive strain injuries from long hours at the bench. Once an hour, a cuckoo clock signals the staff that it's time to take a break and stretch.
