Westfields Hospital names Steven Massey President and CEO

Westfields Hospital Board of Directors has appointed Steven Massey to be the new President and CEO of Westfields Hospital.

“Steve is a highly-respected leader with extensive experience in the financial side of health care,” said Jeff Redmon, Westfields Hospital board chair. “As we conducted our executive search, it was important to us that we find someone who was very familiar with the western Wisconsin region.”

Massey was previously the chief financial officer at Osceola Medical Center, a position he held for nearly three years. Massey has also held positions with Fairview Health Services and Allina Hospitals and Clinics. He earned a BS in finance from Missouri State University and a Master of Healthcare Administration from the University of Minnesota.

“We had several strong candidates, and we are confident that through Steve’s leadership Westfields will thrive and continue to expand services we provide to our patients in western Wisconsin,” Redmon said.

Massey will begin his role at Westfields on August 1. He will be relocating to the New Richmond area in the near future and looks forward to becoming a part of the community.
