

Urologist Dr. Stormont Returns to Westfields Hospital Specialty Clinic

August 18, 2011— Westfields Hospital is proud to announce the return of urologist Thomas J. Stormont, M.D., whose addition will expand the urology services currently offered at the hospital's new Specialty Clinic.

Dr. Stormont is certified by the American Board of Urology, the American Urological Association, and many others, including the Minnesota Urological Society. He was also selected as 'Top Doctor' in Minnesota for eight consecutive years.

Urologists specialize in the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the male and female urinary tract and male reproductive organs. Urology is classified as a surgical specialty, but a wide knowledge base is required because of the large variety of problems that are encountered. Dr. Stormont has an expertise in core urological procedures as well as microsurgery and minimally invasive procedures such as laser, and microwave.

“Many people deal with issues such as an overactive bladder, kidney stones, and even prostate disorders,” Dr. Stormont says. “These are sensitive issues, so it’s important to me that my patients understand completely what to expect, and problems are found early on, so that we can move on to the healing process.”

Dr. Stormont completed his urologic surgical training at the Mayo clinic in 1993 and has since practiced Urology in the Twin Cities and western Wisconsin. He previously provided urological care at Westfields Hospital, now as part of the HealthPartners family, he is pleased to once again serve patients in New Richmond. Dr. Stormont will also continue to provide care at Lakeview Hospital in Stillwater.

In his free time, Dr. Stormont enjoys golfing, kayaking, camping, hiking and fishing with his wife Dorothy and three children (Joseph, Sheila, and Maureen).
