

They have a perimeter brush pile polypropylene stripping, discreetly contained within concealed carriers installed to all staff and parting bead, maximising thermal and sound efficiency. This blog is designed to help homeowners choose windows that are just as functional as they are beautiful. Especially if the wood is sustainably sourced, as is ours, meaning that the trees are being replanted to replace the ones which were cut down to make new windows. A beautiful range of colours and stains, including uPVC woodgrain finishes, which look like real wood, but without the maintenance. Timber frames tend to be expensive, need regular maintenance and can be difficult to replace. Whilst this mimics a traditionally painted finish, rest assured it will never require a coat of paint. We find many of our customers are choosing to do exactly this. I am astounded that the new window looks virtually the same as the original, well done! Jackie H. Want the look of a traditional timber window with all the advantages of uPVC? Many property owners require a traditional timber window frame, sometimes due to planning or environmental restrictions. Not only do they play a large role in the outward appearance of your house, but they let light and air in. Possibility of leaded lights in different configurations. Using beeswax or tallow to the edges of the frames will assist a smooth run. By fitting double glazing and draught seals, the energy efficiency of your home should be greatly improved. Use our WorldPay form below or get in touch with us for alternative methods. By opening just the top of the window, it is possible to prevent young children from climbing out the window. Here at Arena Home Solutions, we take our customers security seriously. For instance, the aesthetic customisation features of uPVC, whilst plentiful, pale in comparison to those of other window styles as uPVC isn't as flexible when it comes to design and shape. That means you won't have to worry about anything getting in the way of natural light, and your sightlines as well. Versatility can often be an issue when it comes to redesigning your home in that perfect idea you've got in your head however when it comes to modern sliding sash windows, they are extremely versatile. The fitter sanded the mark out and resprayed the area. With a uPVC sash window you can open your window vertically for easy ventilation with a traditional look. This is where the draughty and rattly effect of sash windows comes from. Not only are they an attractive feature in older properties, but they are a distinctive feature of traditional British architecture. On the other hand, a sash window that is pushed all the way up still has solid glass covering the top half, cutting down on the available airflow. No matter what style of window you opt for in the end, if it's from High-Tech, you can be sure it was made to the highest standard. WHEN TO CHOOSE CASEMENT WINDOWS Casement windows are usually attached two or more hinges at their sides which means they can open either inwards or outwards. This is in sharp contrast to timber sash windows where the aesthetic of the home is often forced to fit around that of the window! uPVC sash windows from the Rose Collection for instance are considered so authentic that they're often used in conservation areas with no issues. Your new uPVC sash window can be customised to appear precisely like timber windows. Whilst overhauling and draught proofing your sash window it is an excellent opportunity to effect any sash window repairs you might require. If you're thinking about replacing your existing windows, here are five benefits of choosing uPVC sliding sash windows. Now looking forward to the erection of the conservatory. A major attraction of uPVC Sliding Sash Windows is the timeless and traditionally English design, partnered with highly credible energy saving factors and security. Whether you're looking to update the performance of a heritage home or improve a new build's kerb appeal, the glazing options are an important choice. Sash windows for historic properties must be chosen to carefully to ensure you get the right period, as there were several developments and style changes in sash windows over the years. You can even get authentic wood-grain finishes to retain your property's heritage look at a lower cost. Stylish and highly functional, our sash windows are a worthwhile addition to your Sunningdale home. You'll find that your energy costs will decrease as well as your carbon footprint making them an eco-friendly and cost-effective solution. Adding bespoke, quality made sash windows to your home can increase the property's value and help to create a widely-desired period home look. The first one is how the original windows looked and the rest are the new installation. It is also vital in maintaining good indoor air quality, eliminating contaminants, humidity and odours. A good range of finishes and colours is available, with low maintenance required in the short to medium term. Maintaining your timber sash windows is easier than you think. There was no hard selling and the guys doing the install did a great job and left the house spotless. Everything fitted to schedule with great care taken during fitting to get things just right. An example being if you are in a listed building you may not have the opportunity to simply replace sashes. They might not seem that important, but the right windows can make your home truly unique, interesting, and special. Our Georgian bars will further complement and enhance your property's aesthetics so it will remain in-keeping with the surrounding architecture. Check regularly for signs of moisture ingress, wear and tear and refinish with a fresh coat of paint. This is due in large part to the manner in which they function. Our cream coloured profiles are through coloured which allows you to retain the visual appeal of your windows for many years to come. Whether you want one window or twenty, you can trust us to do the job right. Find out for yourself why this type of window is the most commonly used one in the UK with our amazing double glazed sash windows. Every borough has its own regulations but most conservation areas have rules which are designed to preserve the character of traditional properties. Another important feature included is the traditional sill that sits at the base of each window. We were kept in the loop by management at all time. However, you actually have more options available than you may realise. A casement window is a modern variant being more practical and offering benefits such as better security as the lock is constructed within the frame and ease of cleaning. Please help to ensure that disputed statements are reliably sourced. Sash windows are a common sight across English villages for instance, and many people enjoy the quaint appeal and call back to the traditional design that they evoke. Sash windows generally have a higher air leakage rate since when closed, they press against the frame. uPVC sliding sash windows come with the benefit of enhanced ventilation, which means you won't have to worry about being too hot. The flush sash window appearance is created to mimic timber and harbour the excellent benefits of uPVC. The sash cord runs over the top of a pulley along the top rail. uPVC vertical sliding sash windows are available including high security locking systems for complete safety. Shopping local and choosing a company from your neighbourhood is also an option. All our sash windows are bespoke, which means that we can make an exact like-for-like copy of your existing windows. Another popular uPVC sash window type is the wood effect uPVC sash window. uPVC sash windows are therefore a great option if you want to save a few pennies. VERSATILITY Wooden window frames are extremely versatile. Could not be more pleased with the finished product. Whatever you are looking for, we will work with you to make sure that every detail is perfect for your home. This allows warm air at the top of the room to escape, whilst relatively cool air from outside is drawn into the room through the bottom opening. As a result, all of our windows are at least A-rated as standard, and our uPVC sliding sashes are no different.