A Sample Best Man Speech

*H*ello to everyone. Ladies and gentlemen, let me introduce myself. I am Michael, Jeff's best friend and best man. I have always cracked a joke on him being the most eligible bachelor in town but he never reacts. Now, I know that he has an eye for the pretty girl living in front of their house. How can he do that? Oh, just kidding.

When Jeff asked me to be his best man, my first thought was "Why me? What did I do wrong?" And, then it occurred to me, I am such a wonderful storyteller, why not me!

Jokes apart, I have known Jeff all of my life. I can't remember any stage of my life that didn't involve him! Jeff hasn't changed much since meeting Charlotte, other than the fact that he now speaks with a French accent and he has become a wine buff! Well, for those who're wondering, Charlotte's family migrated from Quebec, Canada not very long ago.

Before I continue with my sentiments, I would like to thank all the people who are here. Thank you for helping in the decoration, thank you for bringing some food and gifts, and thank you for being glued to your seats so that you can lend an ear to my speech whether you like it or not. Seriously, thank you so much for your efforts for preparing this lovely party.

Well, I could not be so much thankful and happier for Jeff and Charlotte. They have been through a lot of tests, not the exams that Jeff has failed when we were in college, but those that showed how kind and helpful he is. Jeff and I have been best friends in college. We used to cheat, skip classes, and eat in the library together. I am a shy type person whereas with his looks and charms, he is so popular with all the girls. But this is the main reason why we are best friends. We helped each other to survive. I make some of his assignments while he introduces me to some of her girls. Oh, do not get me wrong in here. The girls are the ones who come close to him. He is like a real brother to me. Further, he is so supportive and king-hearted. He usually helps the elderly when carrying some load and crossing the roads that is why we always end up late in school. Often, when we are scolded, he is just so silent in his seat. No one would ever think that he is Jeff when it comes to those moments.

I am not surprised when Jeff told me that he found the most beautiful and caring person he is waiting for. Charlotte is a strong woman just like him. Not strong in the sense that he can keep Jeff away about 10 feet when she is mad. She is so lovely, caring, and cool. And I can say that they really complement each other. I believe that you are a lucky man Jeff. Now I wonder, what is the secret you failed to share with me? Anyway, let me find it myself. For today, the limelight is for the two of you. May you keep loving and understanding each other. Make each other life happy and successful. I wish you all the best!

Now, I propose a toast to the loveliest couple today. I see the bright future waiting for the both of you. Let us raise our glasses as we wish them happiness and long lasting love! Congratulations and you two deserve to be happy. Cheers to Mr. and Mrs. Higgins!

An Alternative Toast

Please, raise your glass and toast Jeff and Charlotte:

May all your troubles be less
And all your blessings be more
And nothing but happiness
Come through your door.

Cheers . . . and may every happiness be yours!
