We know that disaster recovery can place unexpected demands on an organization's capacity and we are interested in learning more about the challenges and demands your organization may have experienced. Please describe briefly any specific demands your organization has dealt with as the result of your tornado recovery work? In future disasters, how best can the CFMT further support the work of organizations serving disaster victims beyond grantmaking?

We experienced a surge of calls to our Crisis Line and requests for assistance from our clients, primarily in our Relative Caregiver Program, which are families already dealing with instability.

Probably the most effective thing that CFMT could do is help to organize community partners ahead of time so that when disasters strike, we're all prepared to respond in a coordinated fashion. F&CS has participated in Nashville's VOAD disaster response group, but I'm not sure there's anything like that outside of the urban center.
