

RENAISSANCE PACKAGE

Bronze has proven its permanence and ability to endure many of the natural elements through time. Bronze has been used for thousands of years, as far back as 3500 B.C., in the construction of tools and statues that still exist today in their natural form and appearance. Copper is a precious metal that, like bronze, is naturally resistant to rust and corrosion. There is perhaps no finer example of the strength and permanence of copper than the Statue of Liberty.

Hardwood Caskets are available in a variety of species, including Mahogany, Walnut, Cherry, Maple, Oak and Poplar. As with furniture, the species of wood used will affect both the appearance and cost of the casket. Each hardwood has a unique natural graining pattern, making each casket distinctive from the other.

Stainless Steel caskets offer the combination of lasting protection and striking beauty. Stainless Steel is an alloy that receives its strength and durability from adding chromium and nickel to carbon steel. Like Bronze and Copper, Stainless Steel is naturally resistant to rust and corrosion.
