Poem
Mommy, there are not enough words in the dictionary
That can describe what you mean to me
I'm sure your kids, grandkids and those you've touched
In any way would agree.
Your life's testimony left some in shock
But the life you lived for Christ, you had on lock.
You took so seriously that "spare the rod spoil the child"
Then you had grands and became more mild (to a degree).
No matter who asked, why they asked or when they asked,
If someone needed a word, you stayed on ready
If you didn't have the answer then, you did your research and best believe, once you had it, the recipient better be ready
To hear you say once again, "baby girl, hey girl,
I said what I said, listen" with that look you give
But in our hearts, all of your words and memories will forever live
No matter what you went through and how tough it got,
Your faith never did waive
Can't nobody tell me that under the big gospel tent in 1985,
You didn't get saved!

- The Obituary -

Betty Tripp was born in Birmingham, Alabama to the late John Tripp and Leona Nathan Turner. She was preceded in death by her parents, brothers Ernest and James Tripp and sister Joyce Tripp.

Betty attended Girls High School in Brooklyn, NY. She registered and attended Bible College in 1984. She continued her education and obtained her Doctorate of Theology degree at the Brooklyn Tabernacle Deliverance Center Community Bible Institute in 1994. She relocated to Durham, NC in 1995 where she later retired from UNC Hospital.

In 2014, Betty joined White Oak Missionary Baptist Church where she became an associate minister under the leadership of Pastor Charles R. Tyner, Sr. In 2019, Betty was diagnosed with stage IV lung cancer, and not once did she allow her diagnosis to stop her from doing what she did best and that was, serve the Lord. Two weeks before she went home, she said very clearly "Oh my God, my God, he is so good to me" she also said, "I'm ready because all is well with my soul".

God has taken her to numerous churches and cultures before His Kings and Queens and they have imparted much in her. Now God has new grounds for her in His vineyard.

Betty leaves behind to cherish all her memories, her four children Arthur Tripp (Tara), Sheila Tripp, Sharifa Tripp-Dow (son in love, Vincent) and James Norwood; eight grandchildren, Kenya Tripp, Daquan Tripp, Jamarah Dow, Christian Tripp, Jonathan Tripp, Aaron Tripp, Omar Poole, and Jahvanni Dow; one great granddaughter Kayleigh Marie Hannah Malloon; two brothers, Walter Tripp (Cassandra) and Carl Tripp (Karen); one sister Diane Tripp, a host of nieces, great nieces, nephews, great nephews, cousins, adopted family, church family and friends.
