

These Hands

These hands, what do they mean? These are the hands of a woman that labored to provide. These are the hands of a woman that nurtured her family and community. These are the hands that would prepare meals out of love for anyone that wanted to eat. You may walk in the house hungry, but you won't leave that way. These are the hands of a woman who taught us that "There is no shame in any work and if it is worth doing it is worth doing right." These are the hands of a woman that taught us to listen when people speak because "You can learn something from anyone, even a baby." These are the hands that pulled you in for a hug that radiated love and comfort with no words necessary. These are the hands of a woman that taught us to pray and trust the Lord. In these hands I see strength, honor, wisdom, compassion... In these hands I see you. Elizabeth Miller, thank you for all that you did with these hands.

Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, was born to Corrine Anderson (later known as Corrine Dempsey) and James Anderson in Charlotte, North Carolina on May 14, 1923. Their union produced two children, Elizabeth and Margaret. The girls were raised with their sister-in-love, Annie Carol Shivers.

As a spirited youth, Elizabeth attended St. Paul Baptist Church in Orangeburg, South Carolina under Reverend William M. Bowman, later to become a member in June 1945. While residing in New York, Elizabeth was a member of Gethsemane Baptist Church under Reverend Tony Chaneyfield.

In 1947 Elizabeth married Hampton Miller, Jr. From that union they produced four children, Hampton, Ernest, Sandra and Linda. Always a provider, Elizabeth moved to Brooklyn, New York in pursuit of greater economic stability to support her family in Orangeburg. In New York, Elizabeth worked as a presser and did domestic work.

Elizabeth is survived by her daughter, Linda Shuler; grandchildren: Tremayne Miller, Tony Miller, Shannon Lyn (Ian Lyn), Tremonisha Davis, (Will Davis) and Sandra Miller (Rolando Ifill); great-grandchildren: Toni Miller, Sayvon Miller, Nia Lyn, Evan Miller, Natalie Lyn, Jayden Ifill, Raquan Ifill and Josiah Davis and a host of cousins, nieces, and nephews.

A special thanks to longtime caregiver, Theresa Baylor (cousin), Patricia Smalls (companion) and Gracie Franklin.
