The Poem

There are many words to describe the way we feel but missing you sums it all up.

Your hugs, your kisses, your laughs and the joy you brought when you entered the room can never be replaced.

No matter where we find ourselves in the world,

memories will never be erased.

Our hearts were not ready and probably never will.

Because of the time we had with you,

your love we will always feel.

Our hearts are broken and living without you will be rough.

We know you are still in our presence and forever in our hearts.

God will give us strength each day as we fight to make it through.

Not one day will go by without us thinking about you.
