Obituary

When His Glory Paints the Sky

I can see Him through the twilight
At the closing of the day.
I could almost hear Him whisper
As to Him I knelt to pray.

Only wait a little longer
Falter not in faith or sight-
I will meet you in the morning
When His glory paints the sky.

With my eye of faith upon Him,
Though the shadows thicken fast,
For the darkness cannot hide Him,
Till the morning breaks at last.

In my times of deepest anguish,
When with bitter tears I pray.
I can hear His gentle whisper,
I am near you all the way.

Only wait a little longer,
Falter not in faith or sight.
I will meet you in the morning
When His glory paints the sky.

A Matriarch to the church, but “Momma”
to all,

Has let go on this side to answer God’s call.

Lord we will miss her, but you always know what’s best,

But our hearts are filled with sadness,
to you we must confess.

She’s the chain that holds us together,

The glue that will never come undone,

But now we must carry on,

Because her work on earth is done.

No more sickness and pain

The Lord has set her free

Until we meet again Momma rest in eternity.
