

Move On Without Me

The day I left, "A goodbye wasn't spoken", God extended his loving hand to me and said, "my child joins me in this place". Prepare, for your mansion is waiting on you, everything you love is there.

There wasn't time for me to say goodbye or farewell, I had to leave quickly. The peace I felt at that moment removed all the fear, because I knew my savior was right there with me. I got a glimpse of the streets paved in gold and beauty as far as the eye could see. As I walked to the gate my daughter that I longed for was waiting on me. "Mother, I've been waiting on you."

Move on without me knowing that God granted me my request and that was to find peace, free from all the cares of the world. The heart that was once broken is now restored. Please don't cry for me, and don't shed many tears. I have been transformed, I am finally whole and complete in my new home.

This Is Who My Sister Was

To know her was to love her, I won't focus on the day she left, but instead I will remember her giving heart and all the times she helped those that were in need. Her house wasn't only for her, at any given moment she would cook and invite people over that was going through the transition of life.

I asked her once "why are you trying to save the world"? She simply replied, "I want to be a good person and show people what love is truly about, God has blessed me with so much, why would I be selfish and keep it all to myself".

My sister had a servant's heart and she showed it every day. I can hear her say, This is the Holiday Season, put up your Christmas tree and lights and decorate, your home just for me.

Remembering
Valeria Michelle Hill

On November 28, 1984 Valeria life changed she became a mother to a healthy baby girl Katrina Michelle Morrison. Her daughter was her pride and joy, Valeria was a protective mother. On July 22, 1997, her world was crushed when her only child passed away from cancer.

She once said that the loss of a child is beyond pain, it is pure agony, waking up every morning and your child is gone. Her life changed and the laughter she once had faded away.
