

~ Loggers in Heaven ~

*There's a special place for Loggers, way up in the sky ~
Where cypress tops paint the stars and redwoods never die;
Pine & Fir sweetens the air ~ sawdust softens the ground,
And the sound of chainsaws echoing will always be found.
There are no windy days, to disrupt a falling tree ~
There are only blue skies in heaven, as far as the eye can see.
Fluffy clouds are the tree's layout - a loader is no longer needed,
Angels now catch falling trees, so no logger is left defeated.
Wild and free - young and old -
Many stories of these timbermen will be told,
Where the saws sing like Angels - sore muscles no longer ache;
It's those left behind who grieve, and try to accept their fate.
So, when you're feeling sad and missing the one you hold so dear -
Look up at the trees and to the sky - and know they're always near.
Their stories and memories will never be more than a thought away
Even though our Logger is in Heaven now ... they live on in our hearts to stay!*
