

SPRY
FUNERAL HOME

In Loving Memory of
Gertrude Marie Clare

1925

2019

SPRY
FUNERAL HOME

In Loving Memory of
Gertrude Marie Clare

1925

2019

Season of Reflection

This is the autumn of my life—
A bountiful, colorful season;
I'm reaping the harvest of busy years
Spent somewhere 'mid rat-race and reason.

There's glorious beauty everywhere
The spicy air is so cheering;
Then whistling wind reminds me again
That winter's ice is nearing.

So I reflect on the days of youth—
The spring with its turbulent pleasures;
And I rejoice in that season of life,
Its many quests and its treasures!

My summer is filled with labors of love,
And moments of ease and renown;
And questions of what it was all about—
Was I prophet or priest or clown?

But now I see in the lovely leaves
The beautiful City of Gold;
The fruits of the earth reveal to me
God's blessings and favors untold.

And life ever changing goes on and on,
All different and yet without end;
For the seasons are symbols of better things,
As I walk with my Father, my Friend.

Trudy Clare

In Loving Memory of Gertrude Marie Clare

Date of Birth

May 7, 1925

Entered into Rest

March 30, 2019

Memorial Service

Friday

April 5, 2019

2:00 pm

Messiah Lutheran Church
Madison, Alabama

Season of Reflection

This is the autumn of my life—
A bountiful, colorful season;
I'm reaping the harvest of busy years
Spent somewhere 'mid rat-race and reason.

There's glorious beauty everywhere
The spicy air is so cheering;
Then whistling wind reminds me again
That winter's ice is nearing.

So I reflect on the days of youth—
The spring with its turbulent pleasures;
And I rejoice in that season of life,
Its many quests and its treasures!

My summer is filled with labors of love,
And moments of ease and renown;
And questions of what it was all about—
Was I prophet or priest or clown?

But now I see in the lovely leaves
The beautiful City of Gold;
The fruits of the earth reveal to me
God's blessings and favors untold.

And life ever changing goes on and on,
All different and yet without end;
For the seasons are symbols of better things,
As I walk with my Father, my Friend.

Trudy Clare

In Loving Memory of Gertrude Marie Clare

Date of Birth

May 7, 1925

Entered into Rest

March 30, 2019

Memorial Service

Friday

April 5, 2019

2:00 pm

Messiah Lutheran Church
Madison, Alabama

