

You don't need to say you're sorry
it's written in your face.
I know you share my sadness
by the warmth of your embrace.

Don't try to justify the "why", or "how" this came to be Or explain away the myst'ry of death's reality.

Just know that more than any words
the thing I hold most dear
Is the friendship in your handshake and the fact that you are here.
