

The Surveyors Poem

*He thrives on patterns,
His marks and monuments
Transform and wilderness
And by his carefully tagged
And numbered squares,
Neat roads, correction lines
And small cadastral lots
He clothes in certainty, man's ancient rights.*

*He scans the skies,
Reading some far-off star
By which he plots
Meridians and makes his maps,
Stitching a new found world
Into a patchwork quilts,
A net of metes and bounds,
So lands may know their own
And live in peace.*

*That man is a success
Who has lived well,
Laughed often and loved much;
Who has gained the respect of intelligent men and women
And the love of children;
Who has filled his niche and accomplished his task;
Who leaves the world better than he found it,
Who has never lacked appreciation of Earth's beauty
Or failed to express it;
Who looked for the best in others,
and gave the best he had.*
